A 'Faultless' Pat Nixon Is
GOP Woman of the Hour

ON TOUR WITH NIXON: Daily the wonderful country unfolds beneath us. From the plane windows we see it in the early slant of the morning sun. We watch the shadows change as the earth makes its slow mill-wheel turn until the blue dusk and the night come on, and earth is splashed with lights and the furnace fires of night shift in industry.

There are the jet-prop-stops when we come down to earth and reporters clutch at home-town newsmen and ask questions. There are the rides into the cities and the cheering crowds fetched out by organization work, interest, and uncommitted curiosity. One tries to read the faces, the cheers and the heavy enthusiasm of local leaders.

The real story of the week is also a mystery, but a rewarding one. The GOP, with a heavy fatuousness, has proclaimed this "Pat Week." They gave it a sendoff with bands, roses and speeches as the Vice President began the first of the last five weeks before the voters let us know what really is in their minds.

Patricia Ryan Nixon is a person with very much the same qualities as her husband. If you do not like her it is well not to meet her. Many a Nixon hater has rued the day he ever met and talked with Richard Milhous Nixon. So it is with the woman of whom it has been said that her only fault is an almost maddening faultlessness.

Where she got it no one knows, perhaps not even herself. But along the way she attained calm strength which never seems to tire and a personality which always is in balance. The scales never tip. Whether it be a spitting, foul-mouthed mob in South America; a friendly meeting with African chiefs deep in their native lands, a gathering with royalty, or a nervous delegation of local GOP ladies, she is always the disciplined, assured person, smiling at the right time, saying the right things, doing the right thing.

Few know what Mrs. Nixon's intellectual qualities are. She does not talk books or philosophy. She seems to enjoy discussing cooking, and kitchens, school work and children, housekeeping, and clothes.

Mrs. Nixon is 47 years old, two months younger than her husband. She is five feet, five inches tall, wears a size 10 dress, and weighs, always, about 115 pounds. She is, her friends say, attractive without being beautiful; strong without being aggressive; never sick, seemingly never tired. She does not need to watch weight. Her favorite food, and that of the family, is spaghetti. She never has headaches, takes no vitamins or pills; reads no peace of mind books, is not subject to tantrums.

To an interviewer who asked if life lived so much in the public eye had changed in a way she didn't like, she said:

"I don't look back, and I don't day-dream. I think what is to be will be, and I take each day as it comes. I have never cared much for frivolous things."

Yet, this is not so. She is a very much alive person, sentimental and warm about her family and friends. She is an orderly person, reflecting an orderly mind.

She does not like politics. The hypocrisies, bitter cruelties, and pragmatic harshness of it clash with her disciplined philosophy. She would have preferred that her husband quit politics. Twice he promised to do so. But events changed his mind.

It is not without significance that the faith or fatalism Mrs. Nixon expresses in saying she never looks back and takes each day as it comes, is also found in her husband. He has a fatalistic belief about politics which is close to predestination.

Anyhow, this is "Pat Week." She is an enormous asset to the Vice President. He knows it. So does she; so, since it is a duty, she will do what she can, calmly, and properly. The GOP managers know it, too. And it may be significant they are bringing her to the front as the critical rush to the wire begins and the crystal ball gazers gnaw at their nails waiting for the glass to clear.

2 Prisoners Slain;
7 Are Removed

Constitution State News Service

REIDSVILLE—Seven prisoners were ordered removed from the "roughest dormitory" in Reidsville State Prison Monday night as prison officials investigated a nighttime "gang war" in the dormitory that left two inmates dead.

Night prison Capt. Perry M. Brown said the seven prisoners removed from F-1 dormitory, scene of the fatal fight, were ordered locked in "segregation."

The seven were segregated after Warden R. P. Balkcom spent all day Monday questioning the 40-odd occupants of the dormitory.

NOT IDENTIFIED

The night captain did not identify the seven and declined to say why they were segregated from the other prisoners.

Capt. Brown said so far prison officials have been unable to learn what started the "gang war" between opposing cliques in the dormitory at 3 a.m. Monday.

Brown, among the first at the scene of the fight, said he found one inmate dead and another dying from stab wounds.

HEARD CRIES

Brown said the fight ended abruptly when guards heard cries and switched on lights in the dormitory. Guards said prisoners fled back to their bunks when the lights flashed on.

Two other prisoners suffered "minor stab wounds" in the fight. Prison officials said they found outside a dormitory window a sharpened spoon and a sharpened fragment of a shovel.

Brown said the F-1 dormitory was the "roughest dormitory in the prison" and had been the source of trouble for several years despite efforts to break up the cliques of prisoners.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Premier Khrushchev mounted a powerful new offensive against Dag Hammarskjöld Monday—and ran into a defiant rebuff from the U.N. secretary-general.

Khrushchev challenged Hammarskjöld to resign. He also threatened to ignore U.N. peace-making machinery unless Hammarskjöld's job is abolished and replaced by a three-man executive armed with veto powers.

TREMENDOUS OVATION

Hammarskjöld, to a tremendous ovation from most of the members in the 98-nation General Assembly, said it was not the big powers who need the U.N., but all the others.

He retorted in his fighting speech: "I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the organization, in the interests of all those other nations, as long as they (he stressed the word "they") wish me to do so."

LED RED BLOC

Khrushchev once again led the Communist bloc delegations in a demonstration of table-thumping to signify protest, but the Soviet leader was smiling at the time.

The dramatic development came shortly after India's Prime Minister Nehru lent his powerful voice as an outstanding neutralist leader to defense of the present peace-making machinery.

City Worker, Rescuer
Are Killed by Sewer Gas

By KEELER MCCARTNEY

Two city employees died Monday in a gas-filled sewer line at the dead end of Rogers Avenue, SW. One perished while he was trying to rescue the other.

Cornelius Clark, 46, of 510 Rockwell St., SW, and Jake McDowell, 40, of 1300 Mayson and Turner Rd., NW, Negro employees of the sewer department, were dead when brought out by firemen wearing masks.

A fireman who attempted to descend into the 18-foot-deep sewer without a mask was almost overcome by the fumes and barely managed to reach safety.

Detectives said the two workmen were part of a crew sent out to work on a stopped-up sewer line. Clark descended first off-duty, and about halfway down released his grip on the ladder and plunged into water two or three feet deep.

Seeing Clark had fallen from the ladder, McDowell started down. W. L. Smith, in charge of the work crew, said McDowell reached the last ladder rung, gasped for breath and fell.

Detectives Harry McColister and E. F. McKillop said the gas evidently was backed up by the sewer blockage. They said they were told that one breath of such fumes is sufficient to paralyze a man.

The 11 committee members who signed the majority report recommended passage by the Legislature of a pupil placement law and submission to the people of a freedom of choice constitutional amendment. If integration suits were filed, the people of a political subdivision would be empowered to vote whether to close the schools or accept some race mixing.

"We have state and federal statutes in direct conflict with each other," said Greer, who described himself and all other members of the committee as segregationists.

"I must reluctantly say that in every state so far where they have collided on the school question, the state law has had to bend or the schools were forced

Court Holds Line
On Car Insurance

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Georgia Insurance Commissioner Zack D. Cravey's denial of a proposed 8.4 per cent automobile insurance rate increase was upheld Monday in Fulton Superior Court.

Judge Claude D. Shaw's ruling thus kept Georgians from having to pay an additional $2.5 million in premiums yearly.

Judge Shaw said in denying the appeal of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters that the NBCU rate filing failed to show where the rates now in force "do not produce a fair rate of return to the member companies."

"The evidence is simply silent on whether it would be necessary to have an increase to give a fair rate of return," the judge said.

Calling the field of insurance rate-fixing "highly technical and complex," Judge Shaw said he would not attempt to impose his judgment over that of the insurance commissioner who has more experience in that field.

Judge Shaw said the law imposes on him the duty not to disturb Cravey's ruling's unless there is evidence the insurance commissioner acted arbitrarily, or that the rates in force were discriminatory or that he had abused his discretion.

The jurist added, however, that he sees no reason why the NBCU cannot present the matter to Cravey again and give him ample facts to support the bureau's request for increased rates.

The NBCU contended Cravey was required to make a finding of fact in his ruling on the rate filing. It said it had followed the procedure it has always used in such matters and that Cravey, Continued on Page 7, Column 5

$4 Million
Dope Case
Jails Envoy

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Guatemalan ambassador to Belgium and three other persons were arrested Monday on charges of smuggling $4 million in heroin into the United States.

U.S. Attorney S. Hazard Gillespie said confiscation of the heroin was the largest single narcotics seizure ever made in this country.

He charged that the smugglers brought additional millions of dollars in narcotics into the country during more than 10 trips over the past year.

Ambassador Mauricio Rosal, 58, of Guatemala City, apparently used his diplomatic immunity from customs search to get the narcotics into the country by plane.

Gillespie said 160 pounds of heroin in three large suitcases was flown into New York from France over the weekend by Rosal and Etienne Tarditi, 56, of Paris, a French mystery man.

Federal narcotics agents closed in and made the arrests when Rosal and Tarditi rendezvoused in Manhattan early Monday with Charles Bourbonnais, 39, a French airline purser residing in New York, and Nicholas Calamaris, 47, a native of Greece who has been working as a Brooklyn Longshoreman.

George Gaffney, head of the federal narcotics division and former Atlanta, said that Rosal brought in 110 pounds and 6 ounces of heroin on a Pan American World Airways jet that landed at Idlewild Airport Sunday.

Gaffney said the heroin would bring about $4 million on the illicit market when cut for selling.

5 Governors To Rally for Kennedy

By GENE BRITTON

Gov. Vandiver disclosed plans Monday for a $50-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner here Oct. 26 to help raise funds for the Democratic presidential campaign.

The dinner will feature a political "summit meeting" with five—and maybe six—Southern governors attending in a show of unity behind the Kennedy-Johnson ticket.

Sen. Talmadge, meanwhile, will join Vandiver in greeting the presidential nominee next Monday in Columbus where Kennedy is expected to land en route for what is expected to be a brief but major campaign address at the "Little White House" in Warm Springs.

Vandiver told his Monday conference he plans to meet Kennedy's plane, ride with him from Columbus to Warm Springs by car and introduce him at the "Little White House."

Sen. Talmadge has endorsed the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in mild terms. Vandiver's announcement that Talmadge will go with him to meet the big nominee was taken as an indication that Talmadge's enthusiasm for keeping Continued on Page 7, Column 1

Aldermen Reject
Curb on Parades

Atlanta aldermen turned down a parade restriction law, postponed action on a "ward courtesy" measure, and predicted a start on low-rent housing for 500 elderly white families by Jan. 1, 1961, in a meeting Monday.

The proposed parade restriction ordinance, designed to help prevent racial disturbances here, was sponsored by Mayor Hartsfield and Police Chief Herbert Jenkins.

ATTORNEY OBJECTS

Aldermen killed the proposal after hearing a letter from associate city attorney Henry Bowdin which said Atlanta had ample laws to control unlawful congregation in illegal parades.

Under the proposed ward courtesy law, an alcoholic beverage license could not be approved by the full aldermanic board until it had been sanctioned by both aldermen from the affected ward.

This practice has been generally followed through custom—with a recent exception. Last month, alderman Wayne Blanchard of the Sixth Ward, approved such a license but his co-alderman, A. (Bill) Sims, opposed it. The aldermen granted the license.

Elector Case to Get Hearing Thursday

A hearing has been scheduled Thursday on a new attempt by an Atlanta attorney to invalidate Georgia's 1958 "unpledged electors" law.

The hearing is set at 3:30 p.m. before Fulton Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson, who was about ready to rule on an earlier suit brought by the same attorney, Henry M. Henderson. Briefs were recently filed by both sides in that case.

The new suit names Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson Jr. and Fulton Ordinary Eugene Gunby as defendants.

The old suit pending before Judge Alverson was brought against the State Democratic Executive Committee and Henderson was seeking to make Fortson a party to it. The suit originally was brought to block a Sept. 14 straw vote on pledged or unpledged electors.

Henderson lost this point, the straw ballot was held and the vote was in favor of "free" or unpledged electors.

The attorney, for the time being, withdrew the pending suit and dismissed his move to make Fortson a party to it.

His new suit has the same in-

Sen. Greer Calls Sibley Plan
Only Hope to Save Schools

MACON (AP)—The secretary of the State School Study Committee warned Monday that federal court decisions clearly indicate that Georgia will not be able to continue segregated public schools much longer by state law.

State Sen. John Greer, addressing the Macon Rotary club, described the majority report of the Sibley committee last May as "the best and only workable blueprint that has yet been offered to the people in an effort to keep our public education and our system of equal but segregated education from being completely destroyed."

The 11 committee members who signed the majority report recommended passage by the Legislature of a pupil placement law and submission to the people of a freedom of choice constitutional amendment. If integration suits were filed, the people of a political subdivision would be empowered to vote whether to close the schools or accept some race mixing.

"We have state and federal statutes in direct conflict with each other," said Greer, who described himself and all other members of the committee as segregationists.

Paris Rightists Riot For French Algeria

PARIS (UPI)—Hundreds of rightwing youths shouting for a "French Algeria" battled police with iron bars and stones on the Champs Elysees Monday night in the bitterest Paris street fighting since President Charles de Gaulle returned to power 2½ years ago.

Scores of demonstrators and police were injured in the battle which lasted an hour and a half in an area only a few blocks from De Gaulle's presidential palace. Dozens of rioters were arrested.

Police blocked an attempt by the mob to head for the presidential palace and the rioting demonstrators turned their fury on the office of the leftwing weekly newsmagazine "L'Express."

Bid to Oust Curran Tests Griffin Law

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)
NEW YORK — The United States moved Monday to invalidate the election of Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, and 70 other officials of the 40,000-member seafarers' labor group.

In the first major test of the election provisions of the Landrum-Griffin Act of 1959, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell filed a civil action in the federal court here, alleging that the labor leader and other officers in 23 cities where the NMU is represented, had failed to comply with the election proceedings during balloting earlier this year.

Curran received 18,949 votes. The other two aspirants to the presidency of the largest seamen's union in the nation got 2,024 and 1,310 votes.

Spell Out Views, Nixon Tells Rival

By WARREN DUFFEE

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—Audiences in two normally Democratic southern strongholds Monday cheered Vice President Richard M. Nixon's challenge to his opponent to say exactly where he stands on the Democratic platform.

Playing heavily on widespread Southern dissatisfaction with the Democratic platform, Nixon told a crowd of 13,000 who braved an early evening rain here:

"I call upon him to say exactly where he agrees and where he disagrees."

Police said the vice president's crowd's here were slightly larger than those which greeted his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy, two weeks ago.

Both here and at an earlier speech in Richmond, Va., Nixon hit hard at the Democrats. He told a cheering downtown audience at noon in Richmond that those who wrote the Democratic platform "have forfeited the right to ask true Democrats for their party support this year."

The Charlotte crowd cheered the same declaration. Nixon was given a four-minute ovation when he was introduced.

He drew some of his biggest cheers Monday night when he said, "I refuse to go around this country trying to buy the people's votes with their own money."

Nixon told the crowd here and in Richmond, "The major test is which of the candidates can best keep the peace without surrender for America and the free world . . . on that issue, we are proud of our record."

Nixon drew only limited, polite applause in both Southern cities when he said he would stand by the GOP platform on civil rights.

DeKalb Mother Stabs Intruder

A small, blond DeKalb County housewife, enraged at a threat to her children, Monday plunged a steak knife into the chest of a prowler whom she surprised in the home.

Detectives B. F. Corley and J. T. Perkins said the suspect, a Negro, fled with the knife protruding from his chest, leaving a trail of blood.

The pre-dawn drama unfolded in a fashionable section along Hearst Drive near Oglethorpe University. Detectives said the determined housewife battled the intruder while her husband and two small daughters slept.

Only after the Negro fled did she scream. Awakened by the scream, her husband dashed into the kitchen to find his wife sobbing and pointing to a trail of blood that led out the kitchen door.

"He mentioned my children and I got raving mad," she told DeKalb patrolmen C. H. Chupp and L. H. Sullivan. "Did I do wrong?"

Officers assured her she had a perfect right to defend her home.

They said the situation developed this way:

Awakened by a noise in the kitchen at 4 a.m., the housewife thought one of her children had gone to the refrigerator for food or water. She went to investigate.

Flicking on the kitchen light switch, she was confronted by a medium-sized man.

A glance at the door leading from the carport into the kitchen showed the door glass had been broken.

"What do you want here?" she demanded.

"I been watching you, lady," the man was quoted. "I know you got two little children . . ."

That, officers were told, was when the housewife grabbed up a steak knife and "swung it as hard as I could." "He turned and ran out the door with the knife in his chest," she said.

Officers said they followed the trail of blood into a wooded area and lost it. They said they had alerted hospitals nearby and throughout the day had searched the surrounding area without success for the wounded prowler.

New Farmers Of Nation Meet Here

About 1,000 members of the New Farmers of America, an organization for Negro boys studying vocational agriculture in high school, are attending their national convention this week in the Municipal Auditorium.

Opening the 26th annual convention was the NFA livestock judging at the Southeastern Fair.

Members attending the convention were welcome to Atlanta Monday night by Deon O. W. Eagleson of Spellman College.

Highlights of Tuesday's assembly will be the awarding of Superior Farmer degrees to 31 NFA members. One member will be named Star Superior Farmer of America for a $500 award, with two Star Superior Sectional Farmers to receive grants of $250 each.

The awards are given by the Future Farmers of America Foundation, Inc., for outstanding achievement in farming and leadership in the NFA.

Russell DeYoung, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, Ohio, and chairman of the sponsoring committee for the Future Farmers of America, will address the convention following the awards presentation.

The convention will close Thursday with the election and installation of national officers.

Marine Asian Tour Cut to 13 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Marine Corps Monday reduced its standard tour of duty for the Far East from 15 to 13 months.

The new standard will apply to all marines sent to the Far East since July 1, and to most of those who arrived at Far Eastern stations last June.

Major units affected are the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing in Japan and the 3rd Marine Division on Okinawa.

State Probes Wreck; 14 Convicts Injured

The director of the State Corrections department Monday ordered an investigation into the Sunday wreck in which 14 prisoners were injured when dumped from a truck at the Milledgeville State Hospital.

The men were thrown from the open one-and-a-half-ton truck packed with about 45 prisoners when it rounded a curve on the hospital grounds. Three suffered fractures, the State Patrol said.

Trooper D. E. Kettles said the weight of the prisoners shifted when the truck made a sharp turn, breaking a steel brace and dumping 14 of the men into the street.

Baldwin County Rep. Culver E. Kidd charged the truck was grossly overcrowded. He said it should not have been carrying more than 20 prisoners.

The truck, driven by a prisoner, was taking the men to work in the hospital kitchens when the smashup occurred, hospital officials said.

Corrections Department Director Jack Forrester said Monday he had no details on the crash. However, he said he had ordered an investigation.

Bus, Car Collide, Tie Up 5 Points

Traffic at Five Points was clogged for more than 50 minutes Monday after a bus-car collision, police said.

Patrolman C. J. Cleveland said police were escorting a bus convoy and a car driven by Nathan C. Kolodkin of 2757 Margaret Mitchell drive, NW, collided with the eighth bus.

Traffic on Peachtree was halted from 2 p.m. until 2:50 p.m.

Several passengers on the Trailways Bus were shaken up, but none was seriously injured, officers said.

Cleveland said the bus driver, James T. Dye, 55, of Smyrna, was charged with overrunning a red light and accident and Kolodkin was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Burge to Ask Freedom On Bond

MACON (UPI)—Lawyers for Macon businessman Chester Burge said Monday they would file a request for bond for their client Tuesday.

Burge is charged with the murder of his wife, Mary E. Burge, on May 11. He has been held since May 20, when he was released from Macon Hospital, where he underwent a hernia operation just before his wife was killed. His case was set for trial in Bibb Superior Court on Sept. 19, but was postponed at the request of Sol. Gen. William M. West.

There's no business like "store business"

It seems like only yesterday we were beating the brass band, giving the glad hand to irresistible Polly Bergen. She visited Davison's to MC fashion showings of Bergen-designed Jack Squire dresses, and from the second she whirled through our big front door, she sailed straight into our hearts, and those of the beaming crowds who came, saw and were conquered by vivacious Polly, and her becoming, attractively priced fashions you'll find every day on Davison's Second Floor.

That very night, as did hundreds of others, we flipped our TV dial to Station WSB and joined Ruth Kent and Ray Moore at their table in New York's elegant Four Seasons Restaurant to spend a starry-eyed half hour viewing a fashion show of Davison's fabulous line-for-line copies of French and Italian Couture originals.

This was thrilling enough, but it was breathtaking to see these same incomparably chic dresses, coats and suits live on beautiful Atlanta models at dramatic fashion showings the very next day at Davison's. The enraptured audiences stayed to try them on, and buy them. They were amazed how difficult it was to tell the difference between the low-priced stitch-for-stitch copies and the extravagantly priced originals by Cardin, Monsieur X, Balenciaga, Ricci, Simonetta, among other of the great continental designers. Today on Peachtree, you can see the three on this page, and the entire electrifying collection in our Second Floor Georgian Room, Coat and Suit Departments.

But, all is not music, lights, camera—in one word, showmanship, at Davison's. Recently, it was our joy to host our fourth kick-off luncheon launching the ticket sales (only $1.50 for adults, 75c for children) for the Atlanta Public High School Milk Bowl Championship football game, Friday, November 18th, 7:30 p.m., at Grant Field.

Every dollar earned goes to the Ira Jarrell Milk Fund which buys milk for school boys and girls who otherwise would never enjoy it. In five short years, the fund has bought a record-setting half-million half pints.

Our guests were some of the heroes who make the Milk Game possible, including, among many others, the young football captains and the pretty captains of the cheer leaders. As we watched their fresh, alive faces; their rapt attention to the speaker, caught the spontaneity of their smiles and sensed their sincerity, we thought: if this is the younger generation, let them have the world. They'll put it back in orbit with their faith faster than the "old men" with their missiles.

And, it was somewhat refreshing to see what happened in our Men's Patio Restaurant that day. Usually, it is peopled with the great American legend, the tired businessman, and all his talk of big deals in the stock market, or wails of woe about "what's happened to the government," his buying and selling from soup to dessert. On this Saturday, it had suddenly come alive with the unsophistication of youth; the merriment of its honest laughter, the boy-meets-girl glances, the lightness of its conversation, the heartiness of its unjaded appetite. Yes, it was a memorable luncheon for Davison's and we'll be at the game. Buy your tickets right now at all Atlanta elementary and high schools, and join us in helping the Ira Jarrell Milk Fund.

Khrushchev's Aim Is Taking Shape

Now Nikita Khrushchev has said it more plainly: the Soviets threaten to break away from the United Nations and "rely on their own strength" if they please.

An outright withdrawal from the U.N. by Russia has seemed a possibility inherent in Khrushchev's remarkable conduct there. But the diplomatic disadvantages seem heavily weighted against Russia in such a divorce. A pull-out still would not make sense from the Soviet viewpoint.

So the conclusion must be that Khrushchev is principally interested in impressing the neutrals with his strength through the volume of his threats, and in shaking faith in the U.N. as an instrument that can protect them.

He is, in fact, trying to intimidate frightened nations into taking his side rather than risk his wrath.

In this atmosphere the United States must be demonstrably unfrightened. And the United Nations must maintain its grip. Both necessities are being met. India's Prime Minister Nehru strengthened the U.N. grip with his firm speech rejecting Khrushchev's demands for structural change. President Eisenhower kept the United States in strong position by calmly refusing to meet Khrushchev on his terms for two-way talks.

The President did, as Nehru noted, leave the door open for future negotiations with Khrushchev. That was wise diplomacy. For now, however, with Khrushchev apparently intent on literally scaring up support, the President correctly refused to scare.

Talmadge and Vandiver Do What They Should

A furthering of the thaw in the coolness of the state's political leadership toward Sen. Kennedy is evidenced in announcements the past two days.

Sen. Talmadge has canceled other engagements to be on hand for the Democratic presidential candidate's address at Warm Springs next Monday.

Gov. Vandiver will meet Kennedy at Columbus, accompany him to Warm Springs and introduce him for his speech.

It is good to see Georgia Democrats of such stature planning to extend the hospitality to which the presidential candidate of their party is entitled to receive.

Their part in the proceedings at Warm Springs should discourage other party members from going fishing come election day, as some have hinted at doing.

Meanwhile, the action of Sen. Johnson's schedule-makers in canceling his whistle-stop tour of Georgia is a disappointment and disservice to the state's Democratic Party.

Why can't the schedule-makers make up their minds and stick to announced decisions?

Even 'Good' Weekends Take Too High a Toll

The weekend traffic toll in Georgia was the lowest in four and half months. Four people were killed.

In a sense there is some justification for being grateful that the toll was so low. It is, though, a pretty good indication of just how dangerous we have let our highways and automobiles become when the deaths of four people can be regarded with something akin to relief.

This Russian Criticism Was Bound to Come

It was to be expected that Nikita Khrushchev would draw the attention of Africans in the United Nations to the ordeal Americans are undergoing in trying to work out relationships of the races.

He told African delegates they could not have gotten New York hotel rooms without U.N. documents; could not be assured of getting service in restaurants.

"It should have been told them that this is a place for white people, but not for blacks, and this is a humiliating offense, an insult to the dignity of every human. The children of the blacks cannot go to the same schools as the children of the whites. Is that not a disgrace for a civilized government?" said Khrushchev.

U.S. Delegate Wadsworth properly responded that "there is more freedom, there is more well-being for every American, regardless of race, color or creed, in the United States than there is in any Communist country."

Since being better than communism is small achievement, however, it did seem to us Mr. Wadsworth might have gone further and pointed out to the assembly that—regardless of our debate over means—the American government and both American political parties are committed to righting, not perpetuating, any imperfections that exist in our society, and that men of good will in all regions are working, as time and human wisdom will permit, toward a better relationship. Vulnerable as we are to criticism, the Soviet government has committed itself to no such aim in Hungary.

A Falling Stock Market Will Hurt Republicans

Whether this country is experiencing a recession, as Lyndon Johnson said in Indiana, or is secure in its prosperity, as Commerce Secretary Mueller said in Atlanta, the stock market is still falling.

Last week, despite a sharp rally as trading ended on Friday, the New York Times industrial average fell 4.17 and the Dow Jones average for industrials fell 5.06.

How sensitive a barometer of short-range economic weather the trading in common stock is is debatable.

What is not debatable is that in both 1954 and 1958, when the market dropped in late summer and early fall, Democrats made impressive gains in the congressional elections. In 1958 the market regained all it had lost before election day, but still Democrats were able to use the economic issue to advantage. (Probably because there is a time lag between a business upturn's being reflected on the stock exchange and its being felt throughout the country.)

Candidates Kennedy and Nixon are not mentioning the market's behavior, yet. They are both, no doubt, keeping an eye on it. The major domestic issue for the Republicans is "prosperity." This is a hard issue to sell when business is or even just seems bad.

The Goldwater Plan Was Tried Long Ago

Sen. Barry Goldwater is quoted as delivering the following statement in Savannah:

"The federal government has no business regulating wages, prices or anything else. I don't believe in it."

That about covers it.

The Goldwater formula would certainly be a novel successor to the Benson farm program. It would get rid of farm price supports, farm surpluses and farmers. The farmer could then go to town to work, but with no minimum wage of a dollar an hour, he might not be able to make a living.

The country tried the Goldwater plan. It didn't work.

Job Well Done Applies To Work by Sid Truitt

Sid Truitt, who will retire Dec. 31 from his position of Fulton County Agent, has well earned his reputation for being "Mr. Agriculture" in the metropolitan area.

His contributions toward bringing about farm improvements are legion. Due recognition was accorded him last year when the U.S. Department of Agriculture presented him its Superior Service Award "for outstanding success in assisting people to organize family, community and county programs and in developing their resources to achieve higher living standards and more satisfying rural life."

A man of wide interests, Truitt has served ably as a leader in several civic endeavors.

We wish him and Mrs. Truitt, whom Extension Service Director W. A. Sutton hailed for working alongside her husband for many years as an unpaid "Extension worker" in various phases of the program, the best in his new role of county agent emeritus and his continued management of Camp Fulton, the 4-H Camp near College Park, which he developed.

Tattnall Gang War Is Reminder of a Wrong

The gang war in which two convicts were stabbed to death and two others wounded serves as a stark reminder of the main thing wrong with the Tattnall State Prison.

It is too big.

Since 1955 at least five prisoners have been stabbed to death by inmates. Also there have been several sitdown strikes. The largeness of the institution makes it difficult for guards to prevent prisoners from fashioning lethal weapons from spoons and the like.

One way to reduce the population there would be for the state to require counties to keep their misdemeanor prisoners in confinement in their own counties rather than dumping them upon Tattnall.

Two Routes and One Vehicle

John Greer of Lanier County is one of those unburied South Georgians who will be pleasant to all but will do his own thinking. He practices the courtesy that marks men of good quality in the pine and palmetto country: He respects those who disagree with him, but he, too, has the courage to differ.

Calmly, Sen. Greer stated the facts on school desegregation Monday in a Macon speech. He did not argue and fuss. He simply gave his reasons for wanting Georgians to accept the majority report of the Sibley Commission, of which he was a member, and thus keep our schools open.

Every commission member, he said, was a segregationist. None represented "voluntary integration." "There has been nothing voluntary about any move we may make to preserve our public segregated education," he said.

"If it were not for the court orders we would not be here talking about it. . . . Anybody that says anything about voluntary integration has either lost his mind or has been asleep as long as Rip Van Winkle."

What the Sibley Commission wanted to do was the opposite of destroying segregation, he said: the aim was to keep "our system of equal but segregated education from being completely destroyed."

Mr. Greer's approach may shake those who want something more than a reluctant and legalistic approach to desegregation. But he was at least plain in stating his own view that "utter chaos will follow any mass integration of the schools in this state" and that "we must maintain every bit of segregation that is possible . . . or we will face a catastrophe."

Therefore, he said, "we should turn to another battleground where we certainly can win over 90 per cent of the battles instead of losing them all."

According to Greer, adoption of pupil placement and local choice laws as recommended by the Sibley Commission would place the state in this new battle position.

"So we must not fool ourselves," he said. "We . . . are right up to the hickies. Some people argue that we could keep the Atlanta case in court another year . . . What if we can? The ultimate result would be the same. . . . We now face not only a federal court opinion but direct court decisions with a date on them."

The Legislature and the people ought to listen to Mr. Greer's speech. The January session is not preparing to adopt the Sibley report. It may take up the constitutional amendment portion, in an effort to delay, since an amendment vote would have to wait until 1962. But it is unlikely the courts will allow such a delay. And Georgia's children are threatened with a shut-out from education.

It is time for the people to wake up, as Mr. Greer said. Both those who doubt the justice of forced segregation and those who, like Mr. Greer, want to maintain it, are led by differing paths to the same conclusion, if order and education are to continue in Georgia. The answer is the Sibley Commission's majority report.

Nikita Is Amateur Up Against Pros

WASHINGTON—Nikita Khrushchev may yet have his way and so break up the United Nations. But it is in this very forum, paradoxically, that he will lose prestige for himself and for his country the longer he hangs about there on his mission of destruction.

For, in the deepest sense, this is the wrong place for Khrushchev. It is, in the deepest sense, a place where he fights outside his weight and his experience.

For the United Nations is a semi-parliamentary organization—a "debating society." Indeed, as it is sometimes called with contemptuous intent. And whatever else a debating society may be, it is no field for a man (or a system) experienced in the use of force but wholly inexperienced in political manner or the science of persuasion.

Just as many times as it has been true in another "debating society," the U. S. Senate, it will be true in the United Nations: whoever goes there not understanding and also underestimating the ancient parliamentary arts will wind up gaining no adherents and losing some he had at the start.

That this process has already set in against Khrushchev is apparent. Look at the shocked distaste even of non-Western and neutralist delegates at the old dictator's intolerable manners in heckling the unshakable Harold Macmillan.

Macmillan is a true pro in the most demanding of the public arts, that of making a case in such a way as to beat the opposition soundly over the head with the most unimpeachable politeness.

Khrushchev banged the table simply because Macmillan was tearing his case apart—with flawless manner and taste and skill. Unlike the President of the United States, who is aloof from such ceaseless contentions, any prime minister of Britain must face his opposition day by day in a very tough place, the House of Commons.

Some may consider debating a mere exercise for pantywaists; but they could not be more wrong. The unskilled man will lose first his argument and then his head. When his head is lost, when he begins to shout and scream, he does more than merely annoy his hearers in such a forum of professionalism. He also loses basic credit; what he has said so poorly will begin to outweigh even his capacity to act.

A prediction: Khrushchev will leave U.N. headquarters with fewer real supporters than when he came.

It Was an Ideal Way To Celebrate

It was the best way I know to celebrate being 50 years old. We got up to the lake about an hour by sun, as my father would say, and the old May-B, the fastest shanty-boat on the lake, was sitting there all gassed up and ready to go.

We pulled out up the lake with a small cool wind blowing and the water bubbling gently as the May-B stormed along at a good six knots, which is about as fast as a man can trot. Then the dark came on, and a big cruiser came surging past, with a light on its bow, and we followed her to a quiet cove where nobody ever comes.

The cruiser came alongside and dropped anchor, and we tied up to her, and we visited back and forth, sitting out on the May-B's wide deck, listening to the tree frogs and singing a few songs to the music of a ukulele, until time to go to sleep.

I woke up at daybreak, to hear the fish jumping, and eased out quietly and rigged up a rod with an artificial yellow worm and flogged the waters mightily. And no fish struck, but that was all right, for it was good to see the light come over the lake and the mist rising from the water and the white egrets walking on the shore.

We cruised all that day, just loafing along, putting the May-B's nose up against the shore now and then to explore a little island, or an old house place where people

Atlantan Appeals to Talmadge and Russell For Leadership in Presidential Campaign

Atlanta — I have always had great admiration for Sens. Russell and Talmadge. They have grown along with the years, yet kept a place in their hearts and minds for the laws that go as far back as the beginning of the Bible. They have fought for these things with all they had and to my opinion they are now getting ready to fight some more. It is a question of which "arena" they will fight in. They have said they will vote for the Democratic nominees but I wonder, is the fighting in the Republican "arena" more satisfying?

We need your leadership, senators.

Freeway Is The Lifeline

VAN NUYS, CALIF.: "... The hardest riding, freest swinging, road show on earth!" That's a native's description of the Los Angeles Freeway. We know!

We drove it — from Santa Ana in the southeast to Hollywood and Van Nuys in the northwest. Thank heavens for basic training on the Atlanta-Marietta Freeway. What does L. A. have that we don't? Four lanes instead of three and a four-level interchange which handles 353 people a minute, or 508,620 every 24 hours. Stay in your lane. Watch the signs. Know your exits. Someone has to tell you where to get off.

"The Freeway! Angelinos can't prosper without it . . . and some can't be happy with it." You can say that again — of their city or ours.

OF ALL THINGS: Some L. A. establishments concerned about a more than $260,000 bill left unpaid by the Democratic Party after the convention. "We'll pay," say party leaders. "Be patient." That's why most newspapers insist on cash for political advertising. . . . The $3.50 tour of Hollywood, Beverly and Holmby Hills. Art Linkletter lives across the street from Pat Boone. The Boone homestead, an improvement over forebear Daniel's cabin. . . . Jimmy Stewart and Hedy Lamarr across-the-street neighbors. . . . Schwab's Drug Store, where Lana Turner was discovered working at the soda fountain. No girl has been discovered working at the fountain since. . . . The only celebrity we saw was Van Johnson's cat. . . . Dr. Chester Ferrodin sent greetings to his brother Alex, U. of G. education school. And Carl Berggren, San Fernando Valley, to Walter Hill and Sen. Ivan Allen, Atlanta. Remember Carl from Rio, senator?

THE SIGN SEEN: On Beverly Blvd., Think, Inc. . . . In Hollywood, "School Is Open—Be Extra Alert." Aimed at drivers? Or students? . . . On California highway, "Rain for Rent," meaning farm sprinkler systems for hire. Southern Californians, too, worship at the well.

tors. We realize this will be a great decision to make and a very close race. I think most of us are a little ashamed of the rotten planks in both platforms but we also must remember that politics is politics and a plank is not a law until so made. Many voters did not bother to vote on "free" or pledged electors. They did not believe it would pass, and despite the letters written in saying Georgians knew what they were voting for, many of them did not, because I have heard them say so.

We needed Johnson as majority leader, but who knows, he may be president yet. At least they say the vice presidency is the place to learn how.

Idea of Kennedy Visit To Warm Springs Hit

Ludowici — So Mr. Patterson thinks it a capital idea for the image-conscious Mr. Kennedy to come down to Warm Springs for a major speech, thereby wrapping the mantle of the late, great FDR more securely around his shoulders.

I dare say that if Mr. Nixon attempted the same thing at Springfield or Gettysburg, maybe wearing a stove-pipe hat and speaking from notes written on the back of envelopes, Mr. Patterson's reaction would be something less than understanding.

As I see it, the only thing the Messrs. Roosevelt and Kennedy have in common is that both their family fortunes were considerably improved in the whisky trade.

Former Southerner Supports Democrats

Denver — Having lived in the South for 50 years, though at present temporarily living in the West, I am greatly disturbed by some of the literature that is being used in the South in this election campaign. I would, therefore, like to present briefly reasons why I think Democrats should support their national ticket this year.

First, if there is no difference between the Democratic and Republican parties then our two-party system is a farce. But if there is a difference, and if the Democratic Party is worth belonging to, then it is worth supporting. And there is a difference. The Democratic Party has consistently provided leadership to meet the problems brought about by increased industrialization and a larger population. The Republican Party has just as consistently

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The lesson which the Dollarway, Ark., school district takes away from the Federal Court of Appeals is one that the South generally is having to learn. That lesson is that state pupil placement laws may be constitutionally valid, but they must be fairly applied. Dollarway acted under an Arkansas placement law which the courts previously upheld. But the manner in which Dollarway acted, the appeals court found, would leave the schools racially segregated. Standards of placement, in short, cannot be misapplied to deny constitutional rights to equal education.

opposed the progressive legislation sponsored by Democrats.

Second, the Republicans have failed to provide the leadership needed in international relations. The Democratic Party has men who have demonstrated they can win confidence and support from the other nations of the world.

As a Democrat I have an opportunity through the democratic processes of the party to help nominate its candidates. To show my appreciation for this opportunity and to serve my own best interests, I am going to be loyal to the party and support its candidates for president and vice president.

Maybe Nixon Wants Campaign Called Off?

Atlanta—When the vice president suggests or insists that the Democratic nominee for president cease raising the question of American weakness while Khrushchev is in the United States he seems to be naive enough to think Russia does not have short wave radios and other news media enough to know what is being said or done in this campaign or at any other time he wants to.

Everything we say or do here is open to the ears and eyes of any nation with scientific skill enough to get it and I have a feeling they have it. Maybe Mr. Nixon would like to have the campaign suspended until after November 8.

Panama Flag Decision Surrender to Threats

Balboa, C.Z.—Mr. Eisenhower took advantage of the fact that Congress was not in session to make an abrupt surrender to continued Panamanian threats of the violence of Nov. 3, 1959. The President, fully aware of congressional opposition, waited until Congress had adjourned before announcing his decision to permit the Panamanian flag to be flown in one location in the Canal Zone.

Your editorial says, "It can hardly damage the American national honor or compromise this country's rights in Panama for us to make this friendly concession to a smaller nation's sensibilities."

The following items from the Panamanian Spanish language press should clarify the Panamanian feelings in regard to this "friendly concession":

El Dia: "The flag should fly in all parts of our Zone territory . . . the action of the President in ordering the flag in the Canal Zone does not fulfill Panama's aspirations since it will be in one little place in the big Canal Zone."

Critica: "... Panamanians must continue to fight for the flying of the Panamanian flag over both entrances of the Canal, from every hill and from every point of this strip of Panamanian territory."

El Pais: "The flag should also fly from every place that the United States flag now flies."

La Estrella: "The manner of placing our flag in the Canal Zone is very far from satisfying the legitimate Panamanian aspirations."

It might interest you to know that the President of Panama was not present at the initial raising of the Panamanian flag in the Canal Zone despite having previously accepted an invitation to take part.

The Reader Recalls Forgetting Article, and Part That Impressed

There are these kind of days . . . the kind when words must be written and it seems that although you've said it many times, there really is nothing new. Nothing memorable. You wonder does it make any difference, anyway, and remember the urgent sentences which made columns yesterday were perishable and the papers they were printed in are now being burned in the city incinerator or serving as a wrapper for next Friday's fish. This may bother a writing man for a moment, but if he has a note such as I received recently, there's little to do but look at it and laugh.

"Dear Eddie:

"I distinctly remember forgetting to write you several months ago concerning an article which you wrote and which I read with much interest. My thoughts keep reverting to that article and I am at a loss to remember what portion of that article impressed me so much. Please don't think I'm crazy. I'm not. I'm just worried. I don't want to regress by embarking on that confusing voyage into the past, so I am hoping you will do it for me. What was the title of that article?"

How to make them remember? Maybe go global.

There was this in a national defense file, researched by the Department of Labor's Bill Allgood. "Maybe," he said, "you can figure what the circulatory physiology of the octopus has to do with national defense."

Careful study of the Congressional Record showed a congressman, Rep. Fogarty (R.-R.I.) fighting a defense bill because it provided funds for fellowships to study dog discipline: a $50,000 grant to search out wild sounds; a $30,000 figure to find out about the circulatory physiology of the octopus . . .

I couldn't figure this as a help on the fighting front, except for frogmen, and decided to try local problems.

The only one in my lap was put there by Mrs. Helen Reed who drives to work each day down Hunter Street. She sees pigeons coming back to Fulton Tower although all the county prisoners are gone. She asks what keeps the real birds there, after the jail ones have flown.

An answer to this problem I can produce: There is a milling company near Fulton Tower and I'm betting the birds are after grain, and that is what keeps the pigeons perching so prettily. Prisoners didn't feed the flock.

Maybe none of this is memorable. What but a sad story with sentiment stays with people? Nothing. That I thought I had in a copy boy here on the paper. "Poor kid," I said, noticing the attachment running from his ear to a shirt pocket. "Deaf. And at his early age." But when I asked Wendall Wilson about his trouble he looked blank. I pointed to the ear piece. "Tell me about your deafness."

"Man," he said, "I ain't deaf. This here's a radio. I'm plugged in, wired for sound. Dialed on the down side of rock 'n roll WAKE radio. Here," he offered, putting the thing to my ear, "pick up on the next solid side."

Like I said, there are these kind of days. Nothing new. Nothing memorable. Just filled with things readers forget.

Great Truths Survive Tempest That Swirls Around Daily Life

A friend has passed along to me a wonderful little story about the novelist, Lloyd C. Douglas. Mr. Douglas sometimes visited the studio of a violin teacher who had long ago mastered the art of playing skillfully and had also learned a good deal about life. One day the novelist asked the violinist, "Well, what's the good news today?"

The music teacher picked up a padded mallet and struck his tuning fork. Then he said, "There is the good news for today. That, my friend, is A. It was A all day yesterday. It will be A all day tomorrow, and all of next week and for a thousand years. The soprano upstairs warbles off key, the tenor next door flaps his high ones and the piano across the hall is out of tune. Noise all around me—just noise. But that, my friend, is A."

Despite the noises that clutter about us, despite the pompous sounds of sinful men, despite the boastful voices which in arrogance repeat empty words and despite the confusion and conflict among the peoples of our world, it is good to know that some things are unaffected and remain eternally true. If at times our ears ring with sour notes and the only voices are those of men who predict gloom and counsel despair, it is well for us quietly to rehearse in our minds the old truths which will continue to be true forever. The noise is for the moment only.

Even in an uncertain generation there are many things which will remain constant. No one is likely to improve upon the integrity of the Ten Commandments as a guide and

A lovely flower will speak its silent word of beauty to the responsive heart ten thousand years from now. The music of the spheres will long bespeak the majesty of God's world. Great poetry will forever undergird and strengthen the hearts of men. That which is good and honest and true will always be sufficient to stir the minds of men to great living.

When I turn to my Bible, I see the "revelations of God on purposes, meanings and significances of life which are not for one generation only but for all time. The Bible is not so much a book of ancient history as it is a living guide for today.

It is good occasionally to consider those things which will not be altered. It is a tonic against despair. It will uplift the downhearted. As the violinist said, "This is the good news."

Like John Henry, Paul Bunyan, This Gal Doesn't Really Exist

Every time I get to feeling pretty good about the efforts our citizens are taking to cope with sad and complex problems, such as the problem of illegitimacy, somebody hops me in the face with a stupid statement, supposedly by a responsible person, about the women in our land who "make a business of having illegitimate children." The latest of these, sent by and anonymous Elberton reader, quotes an interview with District Attorney Victor H. Blanc of Philadelphia from U.S. News and World Report.

Now Mr. Blanc says he has been "checking around" and he has found "many of these girls down at the corner taproom buying liquor, playing the numbers and buying drinks for the boy friend who is going to produce another illegitimate child so they can get more money out of the public-assistance funds."

And he says he knows of a case where a woman and 11 children get $270.20 a month in ADC grants.

Well, I'm delighted to know where that money-grabbing, baby-producing lady finally got to! For years I've been on her trail. Somebody reported she lived in East Point but when I checked up I couldn't find her there. Then I heard she was flourishing in Decatur, Ala.

Mrs. Caroline Clarke, the county welfare director, couldn't find her. Two south Georgia correspondents knew about her but they couldn't produce her name and address.

The last I heard she was in Louisiana, living on the fat of the land while populating the earth at public expense. Now Philadelphia claims her.

Personally, I've stopped believing in this gal. I think she is a legendary figure like John Henry or Paul Bunyan.

According to a new report from the Department of Health, Welfare and Education nobody but a lunatic would dream of considering baby-making financially profitable. The average payments per family under ADC grants range from $27.90 in Alabama to $164.06 in New York, falling considerably below the average basic necessities for all.

This report, prepared by the Bureau of Public Assistance in response to a request from the Senate Appropriations Committee, is available, I imagine, to anybody who wants to write the Government Printing Office in Washington. It discusses the problem of illegitimacy in more detail than anything I have seen, including the efforts of the various states (our own among them) to pass laws to "control moral laxity."

The findings of a Virginia group considering a sterilization bill struck me as worth noting. It said such a law would "be cruel and inhumane treatment and would probably be declared unconstitutional," adding that proponents of this legislation "are often not interested in making it applicable to all mothers of two illegitimate children, but only to those receiving or seeking public assistance."

Assembly Recall On Schools Forecast

Special '61 Session Will Enact
Free Choice, Mackay Predicts

By MARION GAINES

DeKalb Rep. James Mackay said Monday night he believes that Atlanta's school segregation crisis will force a special legislative session next fall that will see the General Assembly adopt a "freedom of choice" plan to keep open Georgia's public schools.

Mackay predicted that the 1961 legislature at its regular session in January will do nothing in regard to a federal court order directing the city of Atlanta to desegregate its schools next September.

OUTLINES DEVELOPMENTS

If the legislature does indeed stand pat, Mackay said, then he foresees these events ensuing:

1. Negroes will apply for admission in September to Atlanta high schools, and will be rejected by the city school board under its pupil placement plan.

2. The rejected Negroes will appeal to Federal Judge Frank A. Hooper and—"just like the judge in Norfolk"—he will order that some be admitted.

3. The judge at the same time will "issue a blanket injunction forbidding the governor and all state officials to interfere" and also will "declare void" all of the state's school closing laws.

4. That will force Gov. Vandiver to recall the General Assembly and "I don't believe the legislature will ever withdraw from the operation of public schools."

TUITION GRANT

Mackay said he thinks such a special session would produce a guarantee of education for every student either "in a public school" or by "a tuition grant."

He said he also feels that a measure would be approved so that "no one will be compelled" to attend school with students of a different race.

Although the forthcoming General Assembly will be confronted with "a fateful decision" on schools, Mackay said, "there's no optimism" that any action will be taken in January primarily because Gov. Vandiver "let himself be jockeyed" into an all-out defense of segregation during his gubernatorial race.

TALKS AT EMORY

Mackay outlined his expectations on the school crisis in one, two, three fashion before an adult education class at Emory University.

On another topic, he said he would "like to see a two-party system in Georgia," but declared the GOP won't be a significant force in the state until it offers "candidates on the local level" because "you can't build from the top down."

Prisoner Slips Cuffs, Escapes

Police were wondering Monday if they had encountered a modern-day Houdini.

Three prisoners were taken to Grady Hospital from city jail. Taking no chances on an escape, patrolman B. T. Coggins sat the three down in wheel chairs and handcuffed them together, their arms under the arm rests on the wheel chairs.

Then Coggins stepped around the corner to pick up a hospital record. He said he was gone two minutes. When he returned, one prisoner had shaken off his handcuffs and was gone.

He was identified as Robert Lester Cameron, 30, of a Flat Shoals Road, SE, address, held on charges of drunk driving.

50 Young Negroes Here Join Southwide Voting Protest

About 50 young Atlanta Negroes staged a voter registration "stand-in" here Monday as similar demonstrations took place in cities throughout the South.

The demonstration here apparently was conducted not in protest against Fulton County registration practices but in sympathy with a Southwide movement.

Registration supervisor Young Howell said the group was "very orderly."

12 REGISTER

About a dozen of the group actually registered. The rest did not come into the office, Harris added.

He said he did not know at first why the group had gathered and told some of the Negroes, "I don't appreciate this. Anyone who can read and write and doesn't have a criminal record can register here."

But a young woman in the group explained that the demonstration was not aimed at him

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Democrat Salutes GOP's Goldwater

SAVANNAH—A leading Democrat, who charged his own national party does not speak the language of himself and other Georgians, introduced a nationally prominent Republican senator at a Nixon-Lodge breakfast Monday.

Sen. Goldwater of Arizona was introduced by attorney John Miller, a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

Miller earlier had declared his support of the Republican presidential slate, stirring demands from some Democrats that he be ousted from his position in the party.

Miller, however, gave no ground.

"When I vote for the Nixon-Lodge ticket in November, I expect to be in the very good company of a lot of other Georgia Democrats," he declared. "I am supporting the local Democratic nominees and my decision was brought about because the national party just does not speak the language of the state party."

Goldwater, making his third appearance in Georgia, lashed out at Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy as being "under the complete control" of labor leaders.

The senator declared his firm opposition to minimum wage legislation. He said he opposed even his own party's platform position on this issue.

Driver Tortured By 2 Hitchhikers

BRUNSWICK—A Brunswick paratrooper told police Monday he was robbed and tortured by two hitchhikers he picked up Sunday night near Baxley, Ga. An attending physician said injuries to Army paratrooper Frank Ribron, 27, were inflicted by "sadistic maniacs." Ribron said he was tied to a tree, beaten, slashed on the abdomen and leg with a knife and burned with a cigarette.

The demonstration was sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, a pro-integration group headed by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

King called it a "pilot project" to determine the "feasibility of a national program of voter registration protest."

The plan called for Negroes to stand in line all day if need be. Fourteen Southern cities were supposed to have been on Monday's list.

SIX PASS TEST

Wire service reports indicate that the only other scene of a mass attempt Monday was Clarkdale, Miss., where several hun-

A doctor said he had been burned between 20 and 30 times and his ankle had been stomped on. The hitchhiker, described as about 21, took $42 and the paratrooper's clothing but left his car.

Columbus Ministers Ask War on Smut

COLUMBUS—The Columbus Ministerial Alliance Monday adopted a report favoring a campaign to rid the area of pornographic and objectionable literature, movies and television programs. The Rev. LeRoy Anderson, chairman of the alliance social action committee, presented the report.

Cuba to Send Nickel, Ore to Red Nations

HAVANA (UPI)—Cuba intends to nationalize the U.S. government-owned $110-million Nicaro nickel mines and export future production only to Iron Curtain countries, authoritative sources reported Monday.

Armed Cuban militia seized the Oriente province mining properties during the weekend after the United States announced last Thursday it planned to close the plant for economy reasons.

Only two shipments of processed nickel and ore have left the Nicaro mines since the start of the year. The U.S. government has charged harassment and "confiscatory taxes" imposed by Cuba on output as responsible for the mine closure.

DeKalb Rejects 2 Candidates

Petition Law Cited
In County Races

By JACK STRONG

DeKalb County attorney George Dillard ruled Monday that two candidates for county offices are ineligible to be listed on the general election ballot because they did not comply with petition laws.

In a special ruling written for DeKalb ordinary Mrs. Katherine Mann, Dillard held that the general election law concerning petitions applies to local as well as state and national officials.

WON'T APPEAR

Mrs. Mann said that she will follow the ruling, in which case the names of Norman Turner and A. A. Beauchamp would not appear on the general election ballot.

Turner, retired Clarkston dairyman, sought to oppose Charles Emmrich who won the county commission chairman's race against three other candidates in the Sept. 14 Democratic primary.

Turner said Monday that he would "fight the ruling to the end," bringing a damage suit if necessary.

Beauchamp, Atlanta lawyer who registered as an independent in May, would have opposed Jim Almond, who won the Democratic primary in a four-man race for county commissioner.

EARLY RULING

Dillard's ruling followed one last week in which he stated that two candidates who registered as independents to run for state representative posts were ineligible.

Robert Lane, Southwest DeKalb High School teacher, had entered his name as an independent in opposition to Guy Rutland Jr., incumbent state representative who was unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Harry Hart, editor of the weekly, Suburban Sentinel, had registered as an independent against James Mackay who won a walk-away race against W. E. (Mickey) Baker in the Democratic primary.

In his earlier ruling, Dillard held that the general election law requiring signatures of 5 per cent of the registered voters in the county, applied to candidates of state and national offices. He held that the state representatives were state officers.

5 PER CENT NEEDED

(The election law in question provides that a candidate's name may appear on a general election ballot only if the candidate is the winner of a primary or has secured the signatures of 5 per cent of the registered voters in his political sub-division—in this case, the county.)

Dillard's Monday ruling went further than his previous one, saying that the law applies to local candidates as well as to state and national candidates.

Dillard said that an amendment to the general election law in 1943 has a petition requirement which applies to candidates without regard to whether they are state, local or national office seekers.

NEED CLARIFICATION

The county attorney said that confusion arises now because of the placement of the amendment to the original law. He said the amendment is included in the statute between the provision setting forth the method of filing for state and national offices and the provision describing how county officers should file notice.

"There is a conflict of opinion about the law," Dillard said. "There has been no ruling on it. The law needs clarification, either by the legislature or by the courts."

Columbus Clergy Asks Smut Rout

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Columbus Ministerial Alliance Monday adopted a report favoring a campaign to rid the area of pornographic and objectionable literature, movies, and television programs.

The Rev. LeRoy Anderson, chairman of the alliance social action committee, presented the report.

In his report, the Rev. Mr. Anderson noted the open sale of magazine and other literature at local news stands which presents lewd and suggestive pictures and pornographic texts.

He also pointed an accusing finger at the movie industry noting the rise in recent months of objectionable films which present illicit sex and crime in a favorable light.

The report even scored television programs which tended to be off-color or suggestive.

He added that the state literature commission has offered its support in any campaign by the local ministers to rid the area of this "filth."

Boy, 5, Injured By Car at College Park

A five-year-old College Park boy Monday suffered facial and possible internal injuries when struck by a car, police said.

Charles Davis Eubanks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theron H. Eubanks of 420 South Main St., College Park, was treated at Grady Hospital.

L. W. L. Daniels and J. T. Newsum of the College Park police, said the boy was following an older child across the road when he was hit by a car driven north on Main Street by Albert M. Harris of Lake Charles, La. They said no charge was made against Harris.

State Docks Ceremony Put Off Till Next Spring

AUGUSTA (AP)—Groundbreaking ceremonies for the Augusta state docks scheduled Oct. 10 were canceled Monday.

Instead, some 2,000 persons invited from throughout the United States will be given a return invitation for dedication ceremonies to be held early next spring.

Georgia Ports Authority Chairman Robert C. Norman, Chamber of Commerce Secretary Lester S. Moody of Augusta and Mayor Millard A. Beckum issued a joint statement canceling the event which was to have included Gov. Ernest Vandiver, Senators Russell and Talmadge and Lt. Gov. Garland Byrd.

Norman said Vandiver would be at Warm Springs with Democratic Presidential Nominee John F. Kennedy who last week announced plans to campaign in Georgia.

Both Talmadge and Russell said they would not be able to attend the groundbreaking ceremony.

Construction of the half-million-dollar state dock facilities already is under way and is scheduled for completion early next spring.

the state out of the Republican column is growing.

The governor told reporters that Kennedy's appearance at the second home of the late President Roosevelt could have a great national significance, tying in the Democratic candidate with the beloved administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The scheduled appearance of at least five Southern governors at Georgia's Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner is also believed to be designed, at least partially, to indicate a strong Dixie front for the Democratic ticket.

Indonesian Troops in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—A battalion of 1,200 Indonesian ranger troops arrived Monday, boarded Congo River boats and prepared to depart for Coquilhatville in Equator Province Tuesday for duty with the U.N. force. Their arrival brings to about 18,000 the number of troops now under U.N. command in the Congo. Twenty-eight nations are represented.

Governors' Conference in Hot Springs, Ark., last week.

He told his news conference Monday invitations had been accepted by Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee, Gov. Luther Hodges of North Carolina, Gov. Ernest F. (Fritz) Hollings of South Carolina and Gov. Nominate Farris Bryant of Florida. He said Alabama's Gov. John Patterson has also been invited but that it is not yet certain whether his schedule will permit him to attend.

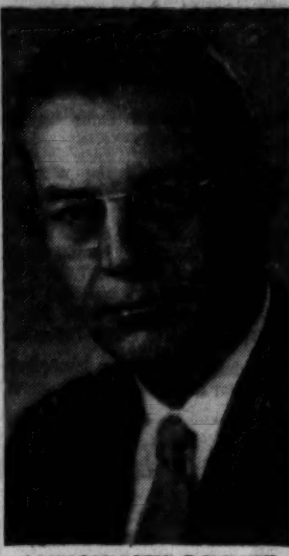

Vandiver said part of the proceeds from the $50-a-plate feed will go toward paying off the indebtedness the Georgia Democratic Executive Committee incurred in order to pay its dues to the national party. The rest of it will go into the national campaign fund.

The governor also had harsh words for Georgia Republicans Monday.

Referring to action by Secretary of State Ben Fortson in refusing to qualify a GOP First District congressional candidate because of irregularities on the candidate petitions, Vandiver said he "would suggest they (Republicans) learn to stay within the law."

He also said he thought the possibility of a state law to prevent Republicans from voting in Democratic primaries should be looked into.

"If a man's a Republican, let him be a Republican—either fish or fowl," the governor said.

The new petition seeks a declaratory judgment holding the 1958 electors law void so that the names of the national nominees will appear on Georgia ballots with those of presidential electors.

Atom Blasts to Test Detection System

By E. W. KENWORTHY

(Copyright 1960 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The United States will begin in the near future a series of tests to improve the detection of underground nuclear explosions, administration officials said Monday.

The administration, it was learned, is also giving consideration to permitting some form of international observation of these tests.

There has been no decision on how far such observation would go. Presumably, officials said, it would include study of the seismic instruments recording the blasts and the data collected, but would not extend to inspection of any nuclear device used.

MAY INCLUDE REDS

If the administration decided to permit international observers, it seemed logical to conclude that the Soviet Union would be represented, officials said.

The program, known as "Project Vela," is designed to improve the instrumentation for detecting underground nuclear blasts and differentiating them from natural earthquakes. Without fairly certain identification of seismic events it would not be possible to detect violations of a treaty banning nuclear tests.

The Vela project will include detonations of nuclear devices and conventional explosives of varying force.

1 STATION NOW

At a news conference Monday, John A. McCone, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said that one station was "about finished."

McCone said that while no fixed date had been set for the start of the tests, "it would be just a matter of weeks, or at the most a few months."

SOVIET TESTING?

McCone said that the United States had no evidence that the Soviet Union has been conducting underground nuclear tests while negotiations on the nuclear test ban have been going on at Geneva.

However, he added that "my surmise is that since there are so many advantages to them (in rearming tests) and there is no means of detection, and the costs are very moderate, I can surmise that they are proceeding in the absence of any proof that they are not."

Boy Admits Big Holdup With Father

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A 16-year-old boy, accused of stealing a number of cars, told police Monday he helped his father rob an Akron, Ohio, bank of $62,628.

FBI agents entered the case and William Ellsworth Evans was arrested on a federal warrant charging him with being an accomplice in the Aug. 26 robbery of the First National Bank of Akron's West Hill branch.

Authorities said the masked father-son bandit team forced employees and customers to line up at the point of pistols, took all the money from the tellers' cages and fled in a car.

Still missing in what authorities said was the city's biggest robbery was the father, Joseph Ellsworth Evans, 55, of Akron.

Goes on Trial

BOSTON—Textile tycoon Bernard Goldfine, left, is escorted into federal court here Monday by an official as he went on trial on charges of evading nearly $800,000 in federal income taxes. Goldfine, 70, the one-time friend of many in high government places, has spent the last three months in the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn., for contempt of court. Flower Elephant Welcomes Nixon

By a Staff Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—The new and acute sensitivity of those in charge of future TV appearances by the vice president was evident in Charlotte Monday.

A gentleman who was present at the Coliseum late in the afternoon said that when the tour's staff man arrived he was surprised to see a gentleman busy on the stage with a curious wooden frame.

RED CARNATIONS

"What is that?" he asked.

"That," said the gentleman, with great dignity, "is an elephant."

"Out," said the staff man. "Out."

The staff man was led aside and informed that florists planned to put some 5,000 red carnations on the frame and produce a carnation elephant.

"But," he said, "it can't be on the stage behind the vice president. It will look as if he has carnations growing out of his ears and hair."

HUNG FROM BALCONY

There was a huddle and a compromise.

The elephant was made. It was hung from the balcony. It was beautiful. The vice president took care to notice it and speak of it as Handsome. His elephant, he said, was not a particularly pretty elephant, but this one was.

LATEST HEARING NEWS for the HARD OF HEARING

MAICO announces another First! The first eyeglass hearing aid with push-pull circuit—this means for you MORE CLARITY, MORE POWER, LESS BATTERY COST.

INCREASED INTELLIGIBILITY

Push-pull circuits are designed to cancel out the even-numbered harmonics in their output. This reduces total distortion by a large factor. In simple English, sound is clearer and easier to understand—a big improvement over other hearing aids without push-pull circuits.

BATTERIES LAST LONGER

The push-pull circuit's battery drain rises and falls in proportion to the strength of the signal passing through—not a constant drain as with instruments with a single transistor in the output stage.

AND BATTERIES COST LESS

Batteries simply cost less for this MAICO instrument—and use less current while operating.

Sen. Johnson Lists Nixon's Big Miscues

CAMDEN, Del. (P)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson Monday night said Vice President Richard M. Nixon's election as president would produce "stalemate government."

Johnson, barnstorming New Jersey and Delaware in his Democratic vice presidential campaign, told a Camden dinner audience his party is certain to retain a majority in the Senate in November.

For this reason, he said, "I predict that if you elect Richard Nixon as president of the United States we'll have a stalemate government."

MAJORITY ASSURED

He noted that even if all Democratic candidates lose contested Senate elections, those without contests plus Democratic holdovers will give the party 55 of the 100 seats.

He hit back at Republicans for claiming Nixon has more experience and maturity than Democratic Sen. John J. Kennedy, especially that part of the claim which is based on the vice president's kitchen debate with Premier Nikita Khrushchev of the Soviet Union.

He said the fortunes of the free world were not advanced merely by Nixon's "waving his finger in Khrushchev's face."

Earlier, in New Jersey, Johnson called Nixon "the greatest misjudger of this decade."

Johnson, in a six-hour tour of northern New Jersey, opened his attack upon Nixon in an address to a crowd from the gymnasium steps of Fairleigh Dickinson University at Teaneck in the morning. He was continuing strong when he addressed nearly 1,000 Newark businessmen and labor leaders in the afternoon.

CALLED BAD SHOTS

Referring to Nixon's experience with the Eisenhower administration, Johnson told Fairleigh Dickinson students, "The people are entitled to know he has had considerable experience in calling bad shots."

Johnson said that the vice president misjudged:

Anti-American feeling in Latin America which led to demonstrations during Nixon's visit there.

The situation in Indo-China "when he made a hot-headed proposal that American soldiers should be sent there to fight in the jungles."

The advisability of suspending nuclear tests in 1956, the Cuban situation, the Berlin crisis of 1959,

Khrushchev Lost Round, Lodge Says

LOS ANGELES (P)—Henry Cabot Lodge said Monday night Soviet Premier Khrushchev "has lost this round in New York and he has lost it badly."

But, the Republican vice presidential candidate said, "I don't want to paint a rosy picture. This conflict is going on for a generation."

Lodge appeared on a nationwide television program paid for by Nixon-Lodge supporters.

"I think," Lodge said, "that Mr. Khrushchev considers he has a bear by the tail in the United Nations. They (the Soviets) find the U.N. is constantly in their way when they try to foment trouble. I think Mr. Khrushchev said: 'If I come to New York and do what Lenin did in the constituent assembly in Leningrad, maybe I can break up the United Nations.'"

"But I think," Lodge said, "that he'll find the United Nations a tougher nut to crack."

As I See It Cliche-Worn 'Rivak' Nothing Like Book

By PAUL JONES

Had it not cost a half-million dollars NBC-TV might have swept "Rivak, the Barbarian" under the rug.

But since that amount of cash might mean the difference between a dividend and a deficit, stockholders probably will be happy to learn that this monstrous historical drama, based on the best-seller novel, "The Barbarians," by F. Van Wyck Mason, will be trotted out Tuesday night.

I understand it's nothing like the book. "Rivak" was to have been a series about ancient adventure. But, after dumping some $500,000 into the pilot film NBC-TV decided it was too costly. And besides, it wasn't especially good.

It now becomes a monument to mismanagement—the most expensive pilot in TV history.

Since "Rivak" has been properly evaluated from a critical standpoint it might be pointed out that viewers might extract some pleasure in viewing this epic as a comedy—not as a drama.

The script is loaded with the most worked over clichés in the language of the theater. Jack Palace plays the part of a prince who is made to work as a galley slave. Italian motion picture actress Millie Vitale plays the role of the beautiful but cruel Carthaginian Princess Thiratha. French ballerina Anne Marie Delos has a featured role. She does a ballet.

The spectacle was filmed in Rome and, if for no other reason, you might get a charge out of seeing some authentic backgrounds.

Incidentally, one of the two co-producers of this misguided vehicle is now production chief at Paramount. And Paramount Pictures stock has been climbing in an otherwise unsteady market. Oh, yes, it is in color.

ANSWERING THE MAIL:

I am a foreign student, for I can learn the English easier. Could you tell me which radio station (in Atlanta) has a "novel" program in that I can buy a book and follow their broadcasts to learn English?

Willie Tsao, Atlanta.

I've been able to decipher some of the mumbo-jumbo which emanates from the radio loud speaker on occasions. The Queen's English is generally used on WSB, WJIN, WGST, WGKA, to name four stations.

Can you tell me how to get Charlie Weaver's last book? I love to see Charlie Weaver on TV... but we can't sit up late enough to see him on the Jack Paar show. Couldn't they get him on an earlier program so the farmers could get a few laughs after a hard day's work?

Mrs. J. M. Spearman, Atlanta. Cliff Arquette, who plays Charlie Weaver, had a show of his own last season but it didn't pan out. He frequently makes guest appearances, however. His book soon will be available at the book shops.

I am sorry they have taken off the Friday and Wednesday night fights. What do you think?

Mrs. Rose Cantrell, Atlanta.

The Wednesday night fights have not been cancelled. The telecasts have been moved to 9 p.m. in order that the bouts might be featured in a live broadcast. A new boxing card, Saturday night fights, has been added. Gene Fulmer and Sugar Ray Robinson tangle at 9 p.m. Saturday. Both are on Channel 11. What do I think? The fight game has hit a new low.

We understood there was to be a new Western in color this season besides Bonanza. We are a little disappointed in the new night color schedule and the lack of color football games.

T.J.N., College Park.

The color schedule is not in full bloom yet. Many specials are not on the regular schedule and some football games will be colorized. The Fred Astaire show the other night proved that color is TV's trump card.

I have the addresses of Ricky Nelson, Fabian, Tarzan, Donna Reed, Walter Brennan and others. I will be glad to send these and other addresses to anyone who will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to 1697 Cecilia Drive, Atlanta.

Jackie Goodman, Atlanta.

Y'all write.

Israelis Find Ancient Site

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli archeologists have uncovered the worship ground of a 3,000-year-old religious cult north of Tel Aviv. A Hebrew University team digging in sand dunes found an enclosure of about 12 square yards with the floor covered by charred remains. It was assumed the site was used by either Israelites or Phoenicians.

World Series Special To Take Look at Stars of Both Teams

7:30-8 (Ch. 11)—World Series Special Tuesday is the annual pre-classic look at the what and who of the series which gets underway Wednesday.

The program will come from Pittsburgh, where the Pirates will be at home against the New York Yankees for the big first game. You'll meet many of the stars of both teams and see some filmed highlights of last season's series.

8:30-9 (Ch. 2)—Tuesday's story on Alfred Hitchcock Presents is something like a refugee from Alcoa Presents. Except for the absence of any claim of truth, this is a supernatural tale that could have been made an ESP offering. It is, however, told as a light comedy.

We meet a young married couple (Dick York and Gena Rowlands) who have a bad day. The tensions mount in the husband and he suddenly finds himself reliving his past—only it happens differently this time. Back in the present, there's one soggy reminder that it might not have been just a reverie.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5)—The Tom Ewell Show continues in the time-worn ruts of other situation comedies.

The problem Tuesday is the daughter of the colonel, which bunks out frightful sounds. Since Daddy had encouraged her to take up music, he can't very well outlaw the instrument of torture, but he can arrange to have it stolen. This fake robbery, of course, is where the biggest laughs come in. Ewell, a master at suffering, suffers beautifully throughout.

10-11 (Ch. 5)—Garry Moore's guests Tuesday will be a couple of Broadway stars who hit the big time in the current musical "Bye Bye Birdie."

The guest are Chita Rivera and Dick Van Dyke, a former Atlantan.

10-10:30 (Ch. 11)—The core of Tuesday's Alcoa Presents was suggested by a viewer, Prof. Amanda Ellis, of the history department of Colorado College. It happened at Fort Union, N.M., in 1869, and old legends say it really is true.

Elizabeth Montgomery plays the daughter of the colonel, a flirtatious young thing who keeps several officers on her string. One of them insists on hanging around even after he has been killed by the Indians, and that's the story.

Friend and Foe Alike Respected Sen. George

By TED LIPPMAN

When Walter George died at 70 in his hometown of Vienna, a whole nation, literally, mourned.

Sorrow at his passing was felt, indeed, all over the world. It was a world much smaller than the one he had been born into, not far from where he died, back in 1870. Walter George helped to shrink it.

In the last two years of his life, Walter George enjoyed his greatest prestige, exercised his greatest influence, received his greatest amount of admiration, respect and love. In a time of great crisis, when a dread war seemed not only possible but likely, it was Walter George who offered America a course of action, and a calmness and a maturity that it had not had before. He gave Americans a faith in themselves and he gave the rest of the world a share in that faith; crisis became just an incident in the sweep of history.

For two years, as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and as president pro tem of the Senate, Walter George forged a truly bi-partisan foreign policy for the nation, with President Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles. It was his time of greatness. His provincial fame gave way to an international fame.

WORLD NEEDED WISDOM

In 1950, the world found itself weighed in the scales of war. War could mean ethnic holocaust, Russia and the United States, and a new, grim unknown, Red China, found themselves in postures that offered, apparently, little chance for anything but war or appeasement. Querry and Matsuo were issues that demanded wisdom and direction and calmness.

Sen. Walter George provided that—and maturity. He did more. Must the great enemies of the world stand aloof and perhaps fall into disaster through not trying to find peace? The temper of the times said yes. Walter George said no.

Through his efforts President Eisenhower and the Russian chief met at Geneva and talked. War was averted.

PEOPLE LISTENED

People listened to him. He still was the great orator. He was one of the few men who could change votes by a speech, Sen. Carl Hayden said.

The words Walter George used during the crisis were not magic; his counsel was not divine. Another man could have said the same words, perhaps. Perhaps, but if there was no magic in the words, there was a sort of American magic in the man himself. He made it all seem so easy.

One time he said, "This nation should be big enough to talk to anyone in the interest of world peace." Simple words, but no one else had said them. Another time during the crisis it was Walter George who saw that history had come around again to the point where fate must be discussed at the summit, though it was not he who coined the slick and easy phrase.

Walter George never did anything easy, just as he never did anything slick. He worked hard all his life, in the American tradition, the old American tradition, and the marks of the American myth are everywhere seen in his history. The magic in Walter George was the magic of the nation.

He was born in 1870 on a farm in Webster County, Georgia, not in a log cabin (because that part of the myth was already dying then) but in a little pine house.

The accompanying article on Sen. George is one of a series of weekly articles by Constitution staffers by famed Georgians. Dr. E. M. Coulter, retired head of the history department at the University of Georgia, is adviser for the series. Readers, particularly students, are urged to save this article, as a quiz on Sen. George will be published in Thursday's paper. A quiz on people in the news also will be published Thursday.

In the heart of Georgia's piney woods. His parents were tenant farmers and life was hard (the seed of the myth).

It was a family that prized education and revered the written word. His early reading material was the Congressional Record. He was an accomplished orator before he was out of his teens and intent on a career in the law (the myth takes root).

Always there was education and work. "You had to be almost sick enough to be carried out on a stretcher to stay home from school at our house," Walter George's sister remembered years later. "And if we needed a book, bottle of ink, anything for school, papa dropped what he was doing and got it for us."

Walter George went to school at Cordele and Arabi, dropped out a while to teach, finished and went to Mercer. He was a top student and a medal-winning orator. Again it was hard work that led him to the front.

PRACTICED IN VIENNA

He began to practice law in Vienna. He married Miss Lucy Heard (Miss Lucy for the rest of her life). He was a good lawyer and practiced for a half dozen years. In 1908 he was elected circuit prosecutor; in 1912, circuit judge; in 1916, to the State Court of Appeals; in 1917, to the State Supreme Court.

In 1922, at the age of 44, he retired to handle the estate of his wife's father. It was a short retirement. Before the year was out Tom Watson, Georgia's great and damned senator, had died and Walter George was elected to take his place.

He went to Washington a conservative and he died a conservative, which is not to say his views never changed, only that a hectic nation's changed faster. He moved left, only slightly in fiscal matters, rather more in human ones. This is American myth, too, the conservative-to-liberal, the broadening of a man's world and the deepening of his concern for it.

He called himself a liberal, once, in the famous election battle with Roosevelt in 1938. He qualified it with this phrase: "... within the Constitution." He had great reverence for that document. He was never a liberal of the Harry Truman type, and certainly not of the ADA's, but his horizons expanded and he moved left, with care and concern and — again — hard work.

The three decades after 1920 were frantic ones in America. It is a cliché to say that Walter George was an anchor to windward in a liberal blow, but that is what he was.

Much of the New Deal he supported. Much of it he didn't. He was never an isolationist in the extreme sense (he was never anything in the extreme sense), but he was wary of Europe until war came in 1939 and he saw that there was only one best interest in the world and that America shared it.

U.N. WON FRIEND

He went to the Senate in the early '30s with a cool regard for the League of Nations. Later, after the death of his son in World War II (the myth flowers in pain), he made an eloquent appeal for the United Nations on the floor of the Senate. By 1945 he could say, at the 50th anniversary of Crisp County, "You Crisp Countians are a part of all the world today. You cannot separate yourselves from the rest of Georgia, the nation or the world."

Sixty years before he had gone to school not a mile from where he now made that speech. "Sometimes we think we would like to return to the good old days. We cannot go back..." There was applause.

Early in his Senate career, Walter George became marked as a man to grasp the hard, tax-writing financial problems and untold them. It was hard work. It required sweat and intelligence. Little glamour accrued. But democracy is fed on money and government depends on honorable men finding honorable ways to provide that money. Soon his grasp of the immense problems was equally immense. He was respected and he prevailed.

HIGHLY RESPECTED

There were other areas for a man to use talent in. This man used his in foreign relations. He began to learn the complexities of the intercourse of nations early. When the time came for wise hand and strong heart, he was ready. Again, he prevailed.

He was appointed to the Senate's financial and foreign relations committees in 1926 and 1928 respectively. Later he would head both in long and crucial days.

He was always a highly respected man and senator. He had no trouble at election time, though the press of business kept him more and more in Washington, where home was a hotel suite, and less and less in Vienna and his new, handsome brick home.

In 1957, not because he wanted to, Sen. Walter George became Ambassador Walter George. A truly American paradox caused it. He wanted to stay in the Senate. But in doing his duty well he lost touch with the politicians of his state. A strong young man challenged him—Herman Talmadge.

They tell a story about the old senator and the young ex-governor. Herman Talmadge would go into a small town drugstore and greet everyone there by name. Walter George would go in, see no one he knew, ask for a man who had been dead for years or moved away long ago. He saw what would happen. He decided to retire (the lesson of the myth).

NAMED AMBASSADOR

President Eisenhower named him ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He was his favorite Democrat. There was still need of him.

He died, though, at his home in Vienna, back home at last, with Miss Lucy at his side. Soon she, too, died.

The world praised him in his death, as it had done in his life. Of all the eulogies, Walter George would probably have most appreciated, but modestly disclaimed, this one by his friend Lyndon Johnson. "We are privileged in

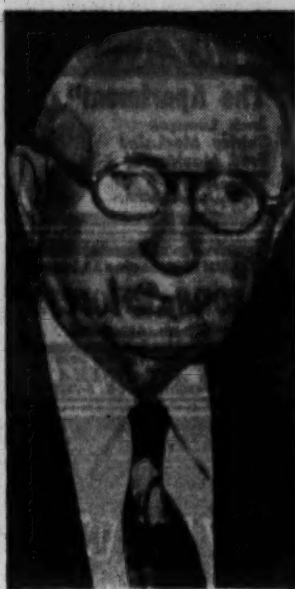

Fast Transit Held Must For Atlanta

The planned construction of 100 miles of superhighways at a cost of $100,000,000 in Metropolitan Atlanta still won't solve the transportation problem, the Fulton County public works director said Monday.

"We're spending most of our transportation money to move cars and not people," A. T. McDonald told members of the Georgia Engineering Society.

McDonald said some form of rapid transit must be added here in view of the high cost of expressway construction and "the inability to keep up with demand."

He said Metropolitan Atlanta's transportation problem will worsen as the population grows and spreads farther from the central city. He predicted the population will double and the land area of Metropolitan Atlanta will triple in 20 years.

our lifetime to have a few brief contacts with authentic greatness. Walter George was truly great."

Of himself, Walter George once said, "Most people know I am not perfect, but they've expected me to be honest." He was honest. He was also polite, gentle, intelligent and industrious.

In an age when most men settle for having good manners, Walter George was a gentleman. In a coarse century, that is saying a lot.

He was a pathfinder, according to another Georgian now dead, the columnist Thomas Stokes. It was surprising, but not unfitting, for the pathfinder for 20th Century America to be a gentle, humane Georgian who had lived beyond his Biblical portion of 70 years.

Report from Africa

Race Cases Hurt America Abroad

By MIKE MAHONEY

Special to The Constitution

DAKAR, Senegal—One never knows when, or where, he will encounter results of racial injustice which harm American interests.

Jean Pierre Faye, 32, an African born in Joal, Senegal, is director of public relations of the Senegalese Ministry of Information.

His uncle on his mother's side is Leopold S. Senghor, president of the Republic of Senegal. Faye, who is a Catholic, attended the London School of Economics for Second in a Series four years, graduated with a degree in political science and then spent two years doing advanced political science work at the University of Munich. He returned to Senegal in June.

While studying in Munich, Faye made several trips to Berlin and it was there that he met and married the German girl who is now the mother of his two children.

Faye was assigned by the Ministry of Information to accompany Leonard Ingalls of the New York Times and myself on a sightseeing trip from Dakar to Joal. During the trip we finally got around to asking what he thought of Americans and the United States.

At first he was very evasive. Then, after much prodding, he turned and displayed a large scar on the back of his head and an irregular gap in his mouth where two front teeth were missing.

"An American did that to me," he said. "I and another African friend went into a bar in Munich one evening to order a drink. Some American soldiers were there and they told us to get out. Naturally, we thought we had as much right there as they had. We couldn't convince them though. A fight started and one of the Americans smashed a Coca-Cola bottle against my mouth and hit me on the back of the head."

He told of other times he had suffered indignities at the hands of Americans.

"If my wife and I were walking down the street in Munich and I saw any American soldiers coming toward us, I would make her leave me and walk to the other side of the street. I had to do this because the Americans would make insulting remarks to her or else try to start a fight with me."

Lastly, he mentioned that a friend of his who had recently gone to the United States on a 60-day State Department student grant, had been badly beaten up by white men in a Detroit bar. "Two men pinned him to the

3 Are Arrested at Manchester In Shooting of Atlanta Grocer

Three suspects in the shooting of an Atlanta grocer are under arrest in Manchester.

The grocer, James A. Adamson Jr., manager of the Green Circle Store at 3533 Jonesboro Road, 55, was in "satisfactory" condition Monday in St. Joseph's Infirmary.

A bandit tried to rob Adamson Sunday night and when an alarm sounded, the gunman shouted, "I'll kill you, I'll kill you," firing five times.

The three persons were in an automobile that was stopped twice Sunday night, once for improper lights and again on a State Patrol lookout, officers said.

floor, while the bartender beat him," Faye informed us.

"I try to remain objective and not judge all Americans by the experiences I have had with them," he said, "but it is very difficult for me to think kindly of Americans."

The only thing Ingalls and I could say was that all Americans were not like the ones he had encountered. But our explanation sounded feeble, even to us.

Faye expects to be transferred soon from the Ministry of Information to the Foreign Ministry. As he speaks English, French and German fluently, he may be sent abroad as a diplomatic representative. He is a young man with an excellent educational background. Undoubtedly he has a very bright future in government ahead of him.

But he will always carry the scars left by a few brutal and unthinking American citizens.

The last thing he told us as we left was that he was studying Russian and hoped to visit Moscow some day.

Mrs. Hodges Wins Test In Lottery Case Appeal

Mrs. Margaret Hodges, now serving sentences on lottery and traffic violations, was back in court Monday, trying to get another lottery conviction reversed.

She won, in effect, part of her case on a certiorari (appeal) of a six-count lottery conviction in Fulton Criminal Court on Oct. 4.

1959, but the ruling didn't affect her liberty.

State and defense attorneys reached agreement on an order before Judge George P. Whitman Sr. in Fulton Superior Court which upheld a contention of her attorneys in connection with objections filed by the Criminal Court trial judge, Charles Bruce.

But the decision merely knocks out the judge's objections and allows the appeal to proceed, court officials said. Before Mrs. Hodges could get the six-count conviction reversed, the actual appeal will have to be ruled on.

Even if the lottery case, on which she got a six-year sentence, is reversed, Mrs. Hodges is a long way from being free.

She has completed serving six months on a traffic sentence which was upheld by the State Court of Appeals. The court also upheld an 18-month lottery sentence. She was brought to Atlanta from Reidsville to serve a six-months jail term she got on the lottery case. When she finishes that, she'll have to go back to Reidsville to serve the final 12 months.

TEEN HUMILIATED, SUIT CHARGES

Girl's Father Sues, Asserts Swimsuit Is Transparent

A father asked $25,000 in damages Monday, charging that his 17-year-old daughter was humiliated when a bathing suit she bought became transparent the first time it got wet.

Claude C. Rogers filed the suit in Fulton Superior Court in behalf of his daughter, Linda Rogers, against R. H. Macy & Co., doing business as Davison-Paxon Company.

The petition said the girl paid $16.98 for the white bathing suit at Davison's and had no knowledge that it would become transparent when it became wet.

She wore it on an O'Keefe High School senior class outing to Ida Cason Callaway Gardens and that's when the transparency incident occurred, the suit claims.

While she walked along a beach, someone tossed her into the lake. When she got out of the water, the cries of her female companions called her attention to the fact that the suit had become transparent, "exposing plaintiff's nakedness."

She had to get back in water up to her neck and remain there until someone brought her a towel to cover herself, the suit alleged. This caused her great mental anguish and caused her "humiliation, mortification and embarrassment," it added.

Last Train From Atlanta Sherman Readied a Defense Against Barbarity Charge

By A. A. HOEHLING

On Sept. 4, Sherman outlined his plans for Atlanta.

"I propose to remove all the inhabitants of Atlanta," he continued, "sending those committed to our cause to the rear, and the Rebel families to the front. I will allow no trade, manufacture, nor any citizens there at all, so that we will have the entire use of railroad back, as also such corn and forage as may be reached by our troops. If the people raise a howl against my barbarity and cruelty I will answer that war is war, and not popularity seeking. If they want peace they and their relatives must stop war!"

Joe Semmes, wrote to his wife from Barnesville:

"The Army is again reunited at or near Jonesboro, some 20 miles southeast of Atlanta, which position was held after severe fighting on the 2nd and 3rd. I presume we will remain quiet now for some time, as the enemy having accomplished the main point of the campaign, the capture of Atlanta, will not repair the railroads, but accumulate a large amount of supplies preparatory to further active movement.

PROLONGED WAR FEARED

"The fall of Atlanta will, I fear, prolong war at least another year. It may have a depressing effect on the people for awhile, but I trust we will all soon make another strong effort to regain our lost ground."

At Lovejoy's, Hood, still smarting, sent a dispatch to Bragg in Richmond:

"Owing to the wanton neglect of the chief quartermaster of this army, a large amount of ammunition and railroad stock had to be destroyed at Atlanta. He had more than ample time to remove the whole and had repeated instructions. I am reliably informed that he is too much addicted to drink of late to attend to his duties. Am greatly in want of an officer to take his place. Can you not send one?"

The next day there was still no sign of Gen. Sherman, whom the citizens of Atlanta expected hourly.

Other units were moving up from Jonesboro in a rainstorm, but Sherman was delaying his own entry.

ARMIES GROUPING

Fenwick Hedley, adjutant with the 32d. Illinois Infantry, said of the operations: "The Army of the Cumberland was to be grouped in and about Atlanta, the Army of the Tennessee at East Point and the Army of the Ohio at Decatur."

"This movement began Sept. 5, and proved to be a remarkable conclusion to an eventful campaign. It rather resembled the retreat of a defeated army, than a victorious march by conquerors.

"As the head of the column turned toward Atlanta, Hood's army was but a little distance behind it, and his cavalry was particularly active. It was necessary, therefore, that the artillery and supply wagons should precede the troops. A heavy rain had been falling all day, and, what with the unmeasurable mud in the roads, and the unserviceable condition of the animals, consequent upon long service and ill-feeding, it was 9 o'clock at night before the long train was straightened out, and the troops began to move.

MARCHED 6 MILES

"After a march of six miles, consuming 12 hours' time, a halt was called, and the wearied troops prepared such food and took such rest as the weather would permit."

Dr. James Comfort Patten arrived at the Confederate fortifications south of Atlanta. "Here," he wrote, "I saw the most pitiful sight I have ever witnessed. A young looking woman was at work by the roadside skinning a cow that had been killed and a little girl some six or seven years old had a piece of the raw, bloody meat in both hands devouring it with the eagerness of a starving dog. I could see the leaders in this thing starve but the poor children. . . .

"We soon came in sight of Atlanta.

"... The City is about the size of Evansville and is terribly shattered. I had often heard of the horrors of a bombardment of a crowded city but I never realized it before. Houses were shattered and torn in every shape that can be imagined, some utterly destroyed and some but little injured. Some had shell through the doors, some places the shell had burst inside of a house and torn it all to pieces. After seeing the destruction I no longer wondered at the insane fury with which they charged our works, rushing on as they often did with their hats pulled down over their eyes so that they could not see the certain destruction that awaited them.

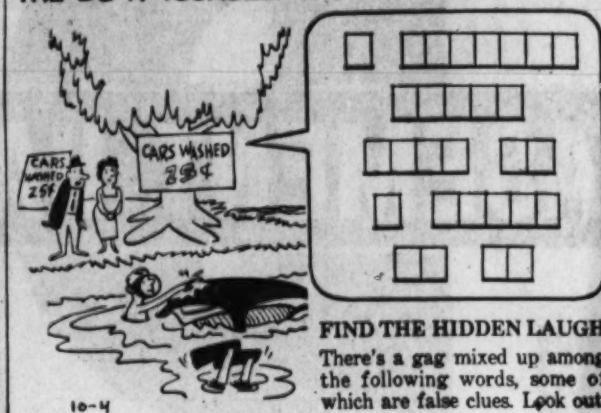

GLORIED IN RUDE

"I am glad that I have taken part in this campaign. I would not for a great deal have missed that ride through Atlanta. It almost paid me for the whole campaign."

Meanwhile, Col. Beatty rested at Lovejoy's, hoping the situation would remain static at least "for a short time."

"We must nerve ourselves for a desperate struggle," he wrote. "A few more such blows as we have received here and we are gone. We lost five locomotives, 81 cars, 25 days rations and a large amount of ordnance at Atlanta. Gen. Hood is a failure. I think Sherman gave him a great chance to distinguish himself but he did not seize it."

But Hood, headquartered not far from Taylor Beatty, was relieved that the Federal army was withdrawing "from our immediate front" toward Atlanta. He expressed his feelings in his notes.

"Gen. Sherman published orders stating that his army would retire to East Point, Decatur and Atlanta, and repose after the fatigue of the campaign through which it had passed. We were praised of these instructions soon after their issuance—as well as of high every important movement of the enemy—through the vigilance of our cavalry, spies and scouts, and from information received through Federal prisoners. Upon this date it may be justly considered that the operations round Atlanta ceased. We had maintained a defense during 46 days, of an untenable position, and had battled almost incessantly, day and night, with a force of about 45,000 against an army of 106,000 effectives, flushed with victory upon victory from Dalton to Atlanta."

To Secretary of War Seddon, in Richmond, he transmitted information of a more official—if less credible—nature:

"Sherman continues his retreat beyond Jonesboro."

State Barred From Closing Liquor Firm

An Atlanta wholesale liquor dealer Monday won a court battle to keep Revenue Commissioner Dixon Oxford from closing his firm while he appeals Oxford's revocation of his liquor license.

Judge Claude D. Shaw ruled in Fulton Superior Court in favor of an injunction enjoining Oxford from closing Beverage Distributors, Inc., operated by Angelo George Nikas, until the appeal is decided.

SERVED NOTICE

The appeal has been filed in Fulton Superior Court and probably will be heard in about a month.

Nikas' attorney served notice at the close of the hearing that he will also seek to extend the injunction to allow Nikas to replenish his liquor stock while the appeal is pending.

Judge Shaw made it clear that all he was doing was continuing in effect a temporary restraining order granted earlier by Judge Jesse M. Wood which prevented Oxford from closing the firm while the appeal was pending.

SOUGHT TO DEFEAT

The revenue department's attorney, Deputy Asst. Atty. Gen. Ben Johnson, sought to defeat the injunction on the grounds that Nikas has not filed a valid appeal.

But Judge Shaw said he could not consider the validity of the appeal in connection with the injunction without agreement of both sides. And Nikas' attorneys declined to allow it.

Research Grants Total $33,012 For 2 at Emory

Two research grants from the U.S. Public Health Service totaling $33,012 have been received by Emory University professors for proposed scientific work at the university.

Dr. Charles C. Perkins, professor of psychology, has received a grant of $18,225 to work with animals to develop a basic scale of rewards and punishments in behavior.

Dr. Ross L. McLean, associate professor of medicine, has received a grant of $14,787 to conduct clinical trials with cortisone, or cortisone-like drugs, in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Forio to Address Women's Parley

Edgar J. Forio, vice president of the Coca-Cola Co. here and president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will speak to the Southeastern Regional Conference of Women in Chambers of Commerce at the conference's sixth annual meeting Oct. 14-16 in Hollywood, Fla.

Subject of Forio's speech is "Women Are Here to Stay." He will be principal speaker at the annual banquet.

Cartoon Curb Out

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A bill to curb foreign cartoons and comics in Argentine newspapers has been rejected by the Argentine Congress. Opponents denounced the proposed measure as a restriction of freedom of the press.

Johnson Cancels State Whistlestops

WASHINGTON — Democratic vice presidential nominee Lyndon Johnson's "on again, off again" whistle stop tour of Georgia next week is "off again."

Johnson still is going to speak at Mercer University in Macon on Oct. 14, but for the second time his schedule makers have called off railroad appearances in other Georgia communities.

When Johnson originally planned a seven-whistle-stop tour, it included appearances in Atlanta and Gainesville, and probably Toccoa.

Last week a new schedule called for a back-tracking swing through Georgia from Birmingham and Macon by rail, with will campaign the next day in South Carolina — at Blackburg, Greer, Greenville, Easley, Clemson and Seneca, with side trips to Anderson and Rocky Bottom.

But Johnson would travel through Georgia without a stop on the night of Oct. 11, resuming his campaigning the next morning at Jacksonville, Fla.

An alternate schedule calls for a plane trip from Tampa to Miami and back that night, with a resumption of the rail trip overnight north to Tallahassee and campaigning Oct. 13 across northwestern Florida to Pensacola and then north through Alabama to Flomaton, Evergreen, Greenville, Montgomery and Birmingham.

These Plump Atlantans Prepare for a Comeback

By JEAN ROONEY
A group of plump Atlanta women may be pleased about most things. But they're plumb disgusted with their physical shape.

So they are applying their traditionally chummy approach to the serious job of slimming down in the YWCA's SFF Class.

That's translated "Slimming Feminine Friends," to the public at large. To girls involved, it's plain old "Sloppy Fat Females," or "Fats Anonymous."

The determined group, numbering about a dozen so far, may have a fur piece to go but they're throwing all their weight behind the project. And they know where they're going—back on the scales in three months, 30-40 pounds lighter.

"We ask for a statement from their doctor on suggested weight loss," Mrs. Dorothy Vogel, Y health education director and SFF class teacher says.

She helps her girls lose three pounds a week for the first month and two pounds a week from then on.

Every technique to whittle pounds is used.

On Wednesday evenings, 8 to 7 p.m., the students do push-ups, knee bends, toe touching maneuvers in the Y gym, under Mrs. Vogel's careful control.

"We slow down our pace a bit from our other exercise courses," she explains. An experienced physical education teacher, she is careful to guard against over-exertion or injurious exercises.

They start with general exercises, then work into specialized ones to suit personal measurement problems, Mrs. Vogel explains.

RUNNING RECORD

Even more important, she stresses pushing away from the table. And to control what goes on the table, she insists that each student keep a running record of every bite of food consumed the first few weeks.

This is tallied against a doctor's calorie chart.

A rough guide is to multiply your weight by 15, for the desired daily total calories, Mrs. Vogel says. The body burns about 15 calories per pound.

"Most women think their daily total is much lower than it is," she found.

DIRTY WORK

It's the snacks that do the dirty work, she points out, and gives them the attached snack chart as proof. For instance, a hamburger runs a whopping 450 calories. And a bacon and tomato sandwich, minus mayonnaise, uses up 400 of your daily calorie allotment.

Cocktails are murderous on your diet, she reminds.

The class deals with the psychological basis of overweight. An Atlanta psychologist will discuss this aspect with them later in the term.

They will also view films on the subject.

Even more effective, the class is starting a reward and punishment system for those who do and don't lose the required weekly poundage.

Those who don't, pay off in a small monetary way, to the student who loses most.

"And we also have a system to handle students who don't report to class," the good-natured teacher reports. "We phone them at a nice, inconvenient hour like 6 a.m."

The class can handle a few more students, Mrs. Vogel reports. And she almost guarantees results.

By George Where Have I Failed?

(Tired of sweet-sweet advice? Send your problems to George, c/o The Atlanta Constitution, for advice that is thoroughly pickled. No problem too trivial for offhand treatment.)

DEAR GEORGE:
My son wants to be an advertising man. Where have I failed?

MADDENED:
There is nothing wrong with the wonderful old profession of advertising. Few things are more creative. Besides, where would that type go now, what with the riverboats having vanished? Buy him a narrow-brimmed hat and wish him Godspeed. Posterity and Brooks Brothers are forever in your debt. Don't take any wooden slogans.

DEAR GEORGE:
I can't get my boy friend to grow up. He's 25 years old now but insists on hanging out on the street corner with teen-agers; talking all that hip jazz, wearing collegiate skullcaps, and now he's quit his job because he says there's no future left for a "kid" and he has decided to be a beatnik. What can I do?

WORRIED:
Your boy friend is just passing through a phase. Unfortunately, it may take him several decades and he'll still be a bum. Buy him a little hoop and tell him to go roll it. It's bad enough being a beatnik, but nobody should have to put with a beatnik wearing a beanie.

WHAT'S NEW IN FOOD

Should You Serve Your Chicken Pie In the Pot or on a Dinner Plate?

By PATRICIA DEATON
Constitution Food Editor

NEW YORK—If you have ever wished you knew whether you should serve chicken pot pie in its baking bowl or spoon it onto a dinner plate before serving—here's the answer from America's leading authority on etiquette:

"Leave it in the bowl," Miss Amy Vanderbilt told the food editors at our 1960 conference.

Second in a series of reports from Patricia Deaton who is in New York this week to cover the 1960 National Conference of Food Editors.

"A chicken pot pie is not appetizing in appearance when removed from its original bowl."

CONVENIENCE TO STAY

While we food editors nibbled all-butter pecan coffee cake and savored cinnamon nut cake from the Sara Lee Kitchens Monday morning we listened as Miss Vanderbilt assured us convenience foods are here to stay—even though homemakers are still inclined to believe that store-bought foods may not have the family acceptance that foods she prepares herself have. Furthermore, Miss Vanderbilt believes that cookbooks of the future which do not make use of convenience foods will fail.

She believes it is the responsibility of every food editor to guide a homemaker in the creative use of convenience foods so her family will know she cares about the preparation of their meals.

Food editors' hearts as well as appetites were won by a tiny golden-haired, 8-year-old Swiss skier at H. J. Heinz's Alpine party Sunday night in Chalet 57 (the Sert Room of the Waldorf-Astoria).

ALPINE FAVORITE

She introduced us to an old Alpine favorite—Cheese Soup. The soup has been adapted to American tastes by skillfully combining cheddar cheese with whole milk and seasonings.

We ate the new soup as an appetizer, then in a main dish of veal, and again in a pie!

That's right. It was a luscious William Tell Apple Pie with a crumb topping made with cheese soup.

The little Swiss skier sang a ditty about the flavor and the A. B. C's found in the new Heinz Alphabet Soup which is just reaching the market.

The Washington State Apple Commission and the Wine Institute sponsored an after-dinner dessert reception to top off the evening. Tasty night-cap mates, apple wedges and slices of cheese, were artistically arranged on trays and served with wine.

INTERNATIONAL LUNCH

An international luncheon, given by Best Foods, division of Corn Products Co., Monday noon, featured marinated steak, barbecued in authentic Argentine style.

The hefty steak was cut and prepared in the Argentine manner under the direction of a steak expert from the Buenos Aires office of Corn Products Co. It was served with mate, a native tea prepared from the young leaves of an evergreen tree. Butternut squash, asparagus and Italian-style tomatoes accompanied the steak. European and Oriental hors d'oeuvres preceded the entree.

There were Sweden's famed meat balls, ham from Denmark and live pate made in the Finnish manner. From the Orient we tasted Tempura (batter fried shrimp and vegetables), pickled Japanese radishes and vinegared lobster.

A very, very English Victoria sandwich for dessert completed the international cuisine.

For a new steak variation (it's reminiscent of stroganoff) you may wish to try this easy Argentine recipe:

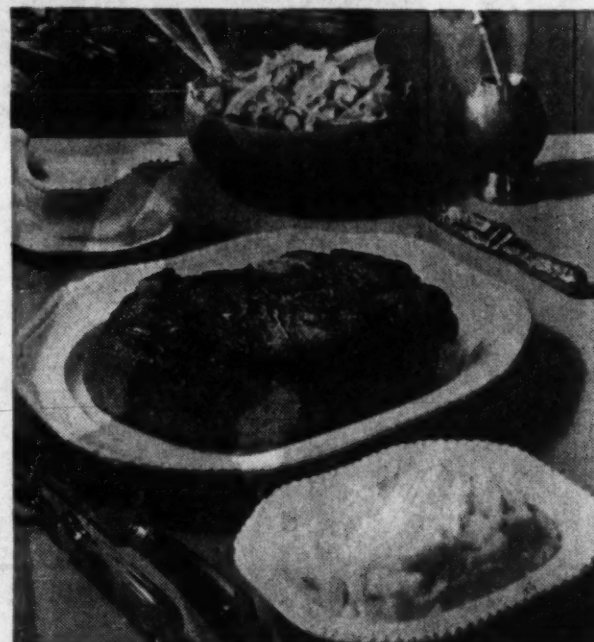

ARGENTINE BARBECUE STEAK

- 1 cup corn oil
- 1/4 cup red wine
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1/4 tsp. rosemary
- 1/4 tsp. garlic salt
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1 sirloin or tenderloin steak
- 1 tsp. cornstarch
- 1/2 cup commercial sour cream
- 1 4-oz. can sliced or button mushrooms, drained

Quitman Says 'Aloha' To One of Its Favorites

QUITMAN—If you will forgive us for being trite, Quitman's loss is Covington's gain. This week people in Brooks County had a sad farewell to Tom and Louise White. We ask a second forgiveness for calling a minister by his first name and, to tell you the truth, this is the first time in our life that we ever left off the Preacher, Parson or Reverend when speaking to, and of, a Man of the Cloth.

Tom is the Reverend Thomas J. White, for more than five years pastor of the Quitman Presbyterian Church, and of course Louise is his charming wife. We are not alone in our familiarity because everyone in this section calls them Tom and Louise, but there's a special inflection and a "wrapped-up-love" tone that slips through when their names are mentioned. Tom is equally as informal, usually greeting friends as Laddie or Lassie.

We know how he prayed, mullied and meditated for several weeks before accepting the official call to Covington. But, on the other hand, we were luckier than most people and had loved and labored with them for five and a half years. Instead of being sad and upset we should be grateful for his ministry here.

We kept telling ourselves that but we still hated to say goodbye. Tom was not just the Presbyterian pastor here, he was the town's preacher and at a union farewell service there was scarcely a dry eye in the congregation. People kept remembering how he and Louise had left their memories of love and service with everyone in the community.

The dedicated man's life reads like a page from fiction. He observes April 7, 1922, as his birthday but he adds five years on to that age. He chose April 7 because this was the date he entered Bethesda Home in Savannah, at about 5 years of age, having spent the first five years of his life at Kings Daughters Nursery.

Bethesda was the only home he really remembers, attending school there until high school days and then to Savannah public schools, but still residing at Bethesda until he entered Abraham Baldwin.

After two years there he returned to Bethesda to work in the dairy to make money to attend the University of Georgia where he received his degree in agriculture. His junior year at Athens he determined to enter the ministry and went from Georgia to Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur.

His only two pastorates before coming to Quitman were five years at White Bluff Presbyterian Church in Savannah and five years at Cuthbert Presbyterian Church. He arrived in Quitman in April 1955.

This brief biographic rundown does not really give you the highlights of his wonderful life. How he married his childhood sweetheart, Louise Wilson, whose parents, the Vance Wilsons, lived next door to Bethesda.

At the time of their marriage Louise was a surgical nurse at Warren Candler Hospital and her training ties in perfectly with her husband's work. She eases physical pain while he ministers to their spiritual needs.

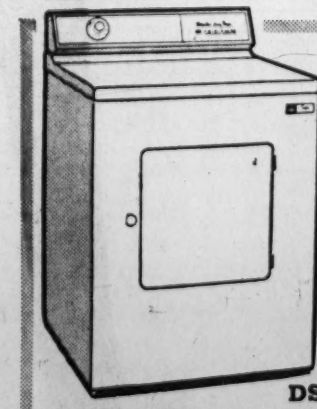

We'll not tell Tom and Louise goodbye. Just good luck and God love you. We know He does and He knows we do.

Paris' New Fad Is the 'Beat Chic'

PARIS (WNS) — Latest fad gripping Paris is to look chic but "beat" at the same time. Thousands of Parisiennes of all ages are doing it, and the slightly incongruous combination has given rise to a new kind of female.

She's the "chicnik."

Chicniks are girl beatniks with style — and a bank account. They're Bohemians with bounce, and a hairdressing appointment at least three times a week. They're rebels with a cause—their own.

The chicnik look was given a decided boost by Dior designer Yves Saint Laurent in his latest collection. He sanctified it, as it were, by putting high fashion into turtleneck sweaters, crocodile motorcycle jackets, and figure-hugging slacks of gold mesh.

IDEAL GIRL

Dior's ideal girl is the chicnik par excellence. But the basic idea is simpler and less costly.

The chicnik can be defined as a girl who believes that the skirt has had it. She wears slacks everywhere. No occasion is too formal or dignified. The thing, at the moment, is to wear them to theatrical first nights. If a few elegant eateries like Maxim's and the Tour d'Argent are square enough to ban slacks, chicniks and their escorts are finding new "bistros" to dine in. In the end, even Maxim's may have to relent.

For really top-draw occasions, chicniks don't gold mesh slacks and jacket. But the all-around chicnik covering is leather — leather slacks and leather blouse, both as tight-fitting as they can be made, preferably in black but also in olive drab.

A DOZEN ENSEMBLES

Some of the more determined beats with bank accounts, along the Avenue Foch or the Isle Saint Louis, say they can't do without at least a dozen such ensembles, often costing as much as $300 a set. The tighter the cut, the softer and thinner the leather, the more expensive it is.

Leather used to be strictly the outdoor girl's adornment. Nowadays, it's indoor, provocative and sexy.

These developments in the plush quarters of Paris have not been without their effect on the genuine beats of the Left Bank. In dismay and self-defense, they are returning to sweaters and skirts, while searching desperately for a style that the high-priced babes across the river won't care to take up and carry several steps further.

Atlanta Career Girl

Be Loyal to Career Boy But Never an Informer

By JUNE WILSON

Ask any successful corporation man to name the top ten qualifications he requires of key employees and somewhere between numbers one and four you will run head-on into the word, "Loyalty."

According to venerable Webster, loyalty has rather a succinct meaning. It is a sense of allegiance, sometimes a feeling of sentiment. But for the working girl, the best fit is the definition: "True to any person to whom one owes fidelity; faithful to lawful government or to the sovereign to whom one is subject." But alas... the meanings the Con-Man Career Boy can invest in this one word!

Even in a one-office operation there is usually one moron who has been brainwashed rather easily into believing that loyalty also requires wearing the mask of the informer. Get into a corporation setup and you have not only ears, but copious holes for scurrying rats to peep through. There is a Webster explanation of "informer," too. It is not the same as the one for "loyalty."

If the Big Man has approached you and told you in sugary tones that he'd be grateful if you'd "keep an ear to the ground" for him, or let him know "when anything is going on," walk slowly back to your desk. Then get your hat... and RUN. You have been insulted.

Career Boy is no fool. He may goof once in a while, but now he knows human nature! No body with the con-man instinct would try to enlist the straightforward into the devious dealings. He thinks you're a weak sister or he would never have let you in on his underhanded secret. Bear in mind too that he already has OTHER informers, and they are watching you!

If he has subtly suggested that you "rat" for him, remember that the species which makes short work of the rat is the cat... the sleek, sinuous, softsoled cat. Serve one of these and some fine day he will plop his paw on your little pointed head. Then you've had it.

Don't confuse the con man with the traveling employer who returns and asks, "Is there anything I need to know?" He means... balance sheets, orders, shortages and developments.

Here is a sure way to tell the difference: If Career Boy breezes into the office and within range of all ears booms, "Well, what happened while I was gone?"... it's okay. He is a businessman. You can play in this league.

But if he summons you to his private suite, manipulates little underling you into the big chair and gives you the silky smile and old-buddy tone... keep your mouth shut. He's a fat cat for sure and is trying to see if you will nibble at the cheese!

Atlantan on Formosa Sends Beauty Report

If you can hardly make yourself sit through a beauty appointment Stateside style, you should try one in Formosa.

Lt. Comdr. Phyllis K. Bohn, former Atlantan now on the staff of the U.S. Navy hospital in Taipei sends back the word. And it's slow motion.

"You don't make an appointment in the beauty parlor here. You just walk in," she trim, former nurse-anesthetist at Georgia Baptist Hospital, wrote.

Then the ritual starts. "They sit you down and one of the little Chinese girls starts to massage your head."

She then gives your shoulders, back and arms the treatment with an electric vibrator.

"It's relaxing, if you have all day," the military nurse wrote.

Oriental beauticians are even more specialized than American ones. A small, male operator takes over the shampoo job and "doesn't spill a drop on you," she continued.

The end result may not be the latest Paris beehive but what can you expect for 55 cents.

Lt. Comdr. Bohn, writing to her Atlanta friend, Miss Barbara Bird, covered more se-

GAY MEMORIES for Miss Leonce Rich, just back from Europe. The pretty teen-age Atlantan, a popular junior fashion model about town, found herself being interviewed by visiting American newspapermen as the typical young U.S. tourist abroad. She traveled with a college group but met her father, C. J. Rich, for a short visit in Rome. It was business for Mr. Rich.

Modern Wife Might Buy Frozen Leaf

NEW YORK (WNS)—Tomorrow's housewife may buy frozen beet tops or canned grape leaves for the dinner table. She may also find plants such as papyrus and water hyacinth, that now clog waterways, to be a good food source.

And she'll be helping to clear rivers and bays, according to "Nutrition Reviews."

The idea, the publication says, is to find new food sources for the world's hungry millions.

ANIMAL ORGANISM
"It is logical to use such products, since all of the proteins derived from animals have been produced by the animal organism directly or indirectly from plants," notes "Nutrition Reviews."

The three sources of supply: wild leaves, plants that clog waterways, and special crops to be planted and harvested just for their protein-rich leaves.

To get fresh leaves ready for the supermarket, they must be pulped and the juice pressed out and filtered several times. Then the juice is heated to coagulate the protein. Finally, the liquid is drained off. What's left is a protein cake, dark green, with little or no taste or smell and the consistency of cheese or yeast.

These proteins will be a valuable food, even as the main protein of the diet, though not as good nutritionally as standard animal proteins, casein or egg albumin, scientists report.

Gordon took the consolation championship. Other star players were Mrs. T. E. McGeachy, Mrs. S. R. Nosworthy, Mrs. I.

W. Cousins Sr. and Mrs. W. G. Smith, all heading the list in follow-up flights.

Is Your English Holding You Back?

"Many intelligent men and women are held back in their jobs and social lives because they use poor English or can't speak and write effectively," says Don Bolander, director of English at Career Institute, Chicago.

"Adults who realize that their English is holding them back use our new home method to stop making embarrassing mistakes in English, to improve their writing, to increase their vocabularies, to speed up their reading, to acquire the techniques of fluent conversation. But the use of effective English pays off in unexpected ways," says Bolander, "because language is a tool of thought as well as a tool of expression."

"You use words with which to think. The more you learn about words and how to arrange them to express your ideas, the better your thinking becomes. The improvement of your English—including your thinking—can lead to amazing personal achievements."

For those interested, Bolander has made available a free 32-page booklet that tells how you can gain the ability to speak and write like a college graduate, in your own home. Just put your name and address on a card or letter and send to Don Bolander, Dept. AC-2, 30 East Adams, Chicago 3, Illinois. The booklet will be mailed promptly with no obligation, of course.

Slight Pressure of Sunlight Forcing Echo I Back to Earth

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The infinitesimal pressure of sunlight is driving the huge Echo I communication satellite 3.5 miles closer to the earth every 24 hours, scientists disclosed Sunday.

This pressure, which has been described as a wisp of force far slighter than the breeze from a gnat's wing, eventually will be the death of the 100-foot sphere, launched Aug. 12 into an orbit nearly 1,000 miles high.

WILL BURN UP
Echo might continue in orbit for 20 years if space were a lightless void. But the pressure of solar radiation, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said, will push it in about a year into denser areas of the earth's atmosphere where it will burn up.

The total force of sunlight on the sphere, NSA said, is only one-fiftieth of an ounce.

FLIGHT TIME CUT

When launched, Echo approached no closer than 932 miles to the earth in its orbital flights. As of today, however, the satellite's perigee (closest point to earth) was only 817.2 miles.

Meanwhile, NASA said, atmospheric drag is cutting Echo's time of flight in each circuit of the earth by about one second a week. This is true despite the fact that space in the region traversed by Echo comes closer to being a complete vacuum than anything science can achieve in the laboratory.

The effects of sunlight and atmospheric drag on Echo were reported by Dr. Robert Jastrow and Robert Bryant of the Theoretical Division of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center.

Echo was launched primarily as a radio communications experiment and is still being used to reflect messages from coast to coast. But because of its huge dimensions—it is as big as a 10-story building—it also serves as a sensitive instrument for gauging the effect of sunlight and measuring atmospheric density at high altitudes.

Color-Ads Increase

Consumers are reading more color ads in their daily newspapers. The use of color advertising during the first 11 months of 1959 was better than 24.1 per cent ahead of the same period in 1958.

The Pirates in Six

The upcoming World Series is merely the 25th chapter of an old and amazing success story for the proud New York Yankees. It's New Year's Eve, Mardi Gras, the Fourth of July and the end of 33 years of frustration for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It's easy to understand why the Yankees calmly celebrated their latest pennant at a routine steak party, while the Pirates whooped and hollered and almost wrecked the joint. New York had not won a pennant since 1958. Pittsburgh had not won since 1927.

Outlar

The Yankees have raised the American League flag 23 times and claimed 16 world championships since the Pirates last participated in the Series. Of course it was the Yankees who shot down the last Pittsburgh entry with a humiliating four-game blast.

This Series means everything to Danny Murtaugh's men and their boosters. It's only a chance for Casey Stengel's blasé troops to make another trip to the bank.

From a Yankee viewpoint the Series is apt to be an historic occasion for only one reason. It's almost certain to be the last show produced by George Weiss and Casey Stengel, the most successful pennant producers in American League history.

Weiss, a proven genius in the front office, has supplied the talent and Stengel has handled it like a genius on the diamond. The result, of course, has been 10 World Series at Yankee Stadium during Casey's 12-year regime.

—Stengel Saved the Best for Last

It's generally conceded that Stengel saved the best for what is likely to be his last season. He has never rendered a finer managerial performance. Under his skillful guidance an outfit which looked like an ordinary team in Florida winged under the pennant wire with 15 straight triumphs.

Mickey Mantle smacked 40 homers and Roger Maris hit 39, but there was no other resemblance to the Yankees of old or to some of Stengel's previous casts. In fact, Bill Skowron is the only .300 hitter listed in the starting Yankee lineup.

Juggling pitchers with fantastic success, Stengel got tremendous mileage out of sub-par staff. As Stengel noted, his second stringers pitched better than his first stringers most of the time. The record punctuates his remark. Art Ditmar was the big winner, but he won only 15 games. Yet reliever Ryne Duren was the lone Yankee hurler below the .500 mark. In brief, Stengel turned quantity into quality.

Danny Murtaugh, a Southern Association graduate, did a stick-out piloting job for the Pirates, and he's a cinch to emerge as the N. L. Manager of the Year for the second time in three seasons. But, at least in the opinion of one man, Murtaugh won with a much stronger club. For sure, he won in a tougher league.

—Bucs Boast Stronger Mound Corps

Due largely to the stamped down the stretch and the fact that the Yankees are old pros in World Series competition, New York is the favorite to claim its 19th crown.

But the psychological edge belongs to Pittsburgh. So does the best pitching staff. Vern Law, who goes against Ditmar in the opener Wednesday, was the outstanding right-hander in the majors. Bob Friend, Wilmer Mizell and Harvey Haddix will follow Law according to Murtaugh's pitching plans. Roy Face and the veteran Clem Labine will be on instant call in the bullpen. Georgian Tom Cheney, Joe Gibbon, Fred Green and George Witt are also available.

Stengel hasn't revealed his pitching blueprint, but Bob Turley and Whitey Ford probably will get the call after Dithar. Ralph Terry climbed near the top of the staff with a near perfect game at the end. Luis Arroyo and Duren still head up the bullpen. Then, there's Bill Stafford, Duke Maas, Jim Coates and Bobby Shantz.

Pittsburgh's pitching advantage offsets the Yankees' power. Now that N. L. batting champ Dick Groat is back in harness, the Pirates are much stronger at the plate and in the field. The Bucs play the hit-and-run to the hilt, and Groat is one of the best in this and other phases of the game.

Other than the names on the front of the uniforms, there's not too much about the current Yankees to frighten an opponent. And the Pirates maintain that they are not awed in any fashion.

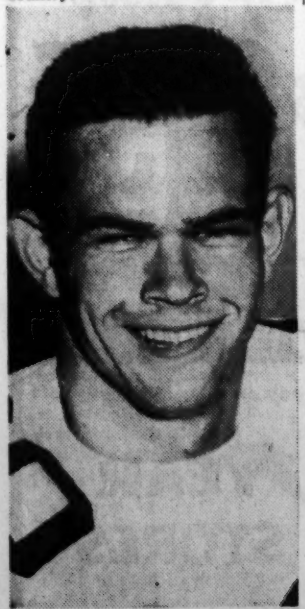

The Bucs aren't overconfident. They're confident. They know they have a solid ball club. During most of the season they appeared to have the best club in baseball. Other than the winning share of the purse, this Series means much more to the Pirates than the Yankees. The Pirates are a solid choice here in six games or less.

Dodd Doubts Tech Can Dent LSU Line

By JACK WILLIAMS

Take it from Bobby Dodd. If Georgia Tech's Yellow Jackets hope to beat Louisiana State here Saturday, they'll have to do it with defense.

"I don't know any way in the world we can score more than one touchdown," Dodd said Monday. "We'll be up against one of the great defensive teams in the country."

JIM POWELL
Lost for Three Weeks

The record books prove that Dodd has a very good point. Only three teams in three full seasons of play have been able to score as many as two touchdowns in a game against the Bayou Bengals.

Duke did it in 1958, tallying 15, but losing, 50-18. Tennessee scored twice last season in 14-13 win over the Tigers and Ole Miss did it in the Sugar Bowl last New Year's Day to post a decisive 21-0 victory.

"Defense simply has to be the story in this game," Dodd said. "Either we keep it a low scoring game or we get beat."

It is interesting, then, to note that defense has been the Jackets' only weakness so far this football season. All three opponents, Kentucky, Rice and Florida, managed to score twice.

It marks the first time since 1950 that Tech has given up as many as two touchdowns three games in a row.

"When I talk about defense," Dodd said, "I don't mean yardage. It doesn't matter how many yards you give up just so long as the other fellow doesn't cross the goal."

"That's where LSU stands out. A lot of teams get down there close, but they have a devil of a time getting the ball over."

"With all due respect to the teams we've faced so far, LSU

IT'S OFFICIAL: LAW VS. DITMAR

Murtaugh and Bucs Unawed By Yanks

By OSCAR FRALEY

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Battling Danny Murtaugh and his underdog Pittsburgh Pirates threw down the gauntlet to the mighty New York Yankees Monday by labeling the start of the World Series Wednesday as "just another opening game."

"Sure, they've got more Series experience," grunted the tobacco-chewing Murtaugh as he quietly watched his National League champions go through an hour and a half batting drill at ancient, ivy-colored Forbes Field, which hasn't seen a Series in 33 years.

"But this is like the opening of the season or the start of a football game," he added. "Get past the opening kickoff, or the first inning, and it's just another ball game before a full house. So they're favored. Well, we weren't favored all year."

The Pirates were calm and relaxed and, like starter Vernon (Deacon) Law, the tall right-hander who will open for them Wednesday, showed no evidence of tension. And even the Yankees, taking a final drill in Yankee Stadium before enplaning for Pittsburgh, admitted that the Pirates' 20-game winner might have an edge on their surprise starter, right-hander Art Ditmar, a 15-game winner.

That opening game shaped up as a battle between two pitchers of similar techniques—fast ball, sinker, curve and change-up.

"But I guess we have to admit that Law has a little better control," said Yankee pitching coach Eddie Lopat.

Manager Casey Stengel, the gnarled gnome who has led the Yankees to 10 American League pennants in 12 years, upset calculations when he named Ditmar for the opener. He had been expected to go with lefty Whitey Ford but announced garulously that "I figured I'd better pick Ditmar because at some times this year he has won the first game of an important series for us."

The Yankees, long on power and short on pitching, were no better than even money to win the opening game starting at 1 p.m. (EDT) Wednesday but Elliott Fired; Is Gordon In?

Senators Re-Hire Lavagetto for '61

From Press Dispatches

Joe Gordon left the Detroit Tigers high and dry Monday by quitting as manager, and the Kansas City Athletics said they would talk to him about succeeding the fired Bob Elliott.

Meanwhile, Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto agreed to contract terms with the Washington Senators, putting an end to reports that he would go to the San Francisco Giants.

The explosive day in the baseball world was highlighted by the firing of Elliott, the Kansas City manager for only one season.

Parke Carroll, general manager of the Athletics, said he intends to discuss the Kansas City managerial job with Gordon during the World Series, starting Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

Carroll said he had talked with DeWitt about Gordon's release.

The Senators announced no figures of Lavagetto's new one-year contract, but it was believed that Lavagetto will receive $30,000, an increase of $7,000.

California, here he comes. Right back where Bill Worrell started from . . . a little over a month ago.

It was August 31 when Worrell boarded a DC-7 in California and came southeast to seek a collegiate football future at the University of Georgia.

As a junior college transfer from Palo Verde, 245-pound Worrell was eligible for immediate varsity duty and Coach Wally Butts pressed him into service.

That was 10 pounds ago. The Winterhaven, Calif., native now weighs a solid 235. He has been playing right guard on the third Bulldog unit, but coaches say he will move up once he has fully oriented himself with the Georgia system.

On Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 p.m., Worrell and his Georgia teammates will board a DC-7 at the Atlanta Airport for a trip back to California and a Friday night football date with the Trojans of Southern Cal.

Speaking from Athens after practice Monday evening, Worrell said he was anxious to play before homestate folk in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

When he is in the game, his opposite number will be the widely heralded and somewhat controversial Mike McKeever, one half of the most famous twin combo in football.

"I have seen Mike play several times," said Worrell. "and he is a mighty fine football player, big and tough, very aggressive. I believe he weighs 230, so I would have about five pounds on him. I am looking forward to playing against him."

Fullmer's Title Bout Postponed

Torn Muscle Delays Fight with Robinson

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Champion Gene Fullmer Monday revealed he has torn a muscle in his right leg, forcing postponement of his fight with Sugar Ray Robinson for the National Boxing Association version of the middleweight boxing title.

The bout, scheduled for next Saturday in the Sports Arena, has been rescheduled for Dec. 3.

Fullmer hurt the plantaris muscle in his right calf during a workout last Saturday. At first it was thought to be merely a charley horse, but doctors examined it Monday morning, and ordered Fullmer to rest.

The champion was limping badly, and said he was in pain.

Robinson, training at Gilman Hot Springs, wasn't immediately available for comment. But his handlers expressed disappointment.

HAYES APOLOGIZES: 'MIKE'S ALL RIGHT'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State coach Woody Hayes said today that Southern Cal's great guard, Mike McKeever, played a good clean game against the Bucks Saturday.

"A letter to that effect is being written to Mike, to the president of Southern California, and to Athletic Director Jess Hill," Hayes told his press luncheon guests.

Harry Strobel, assistant Buckeye coach, was quoted in a post-game statement that "McKeever hit one of our players and should have been thrown out of the game instead of getting a 15-yard penalty."

Hayes said Strobel's remarks were an "unwarranted presumption of guilt on McKeever's part" and that game films showed the Trojan guard was not at fault in any way.

"On the play involved, Mike

Hayes said. "Another player, the films show, struck our ball carrier—but it was not Mike, and it was the only infraction we could find in all our movies."

"So far as we are concerned, and we've played against him twice, McKeever is a clean ball player. He plays the kind of good, hard football that we like our own boys to play. He had a bruised knee Saturday, but he was still a standout."

BAKER 'SOLVES' PROBLEM

How to Stop Colts: Let 'Em Grow Old

By AL THOMY

Sam Baker, a blithe spirit who has hired out his right toe for a living, Monday night told members of the Atlanta Quarterback Club a way has been found to unseat the Baltimore Colts.

"The secret," said the Cleveland Browns' placement specialist, "is to let 'em grow old."

Then, seriously, he forecast a tougher National Football League fight for the Colts "because they haven't got a powerful running attack—and its absence will hurt them as the season goes on."

In the Western Division of the NFL, Baker believes the New York Giants will provide the chief roadblock to Cleveland's championship path.

A refugee from frustration at Washington, Baker said it was great to be a Brown.

"I was apprehensive at first," he said. "No one told me about my trade to Cleveland. One morning I got a call from a man who said he was Paul Brown and asked if I would like to play for Cleveland. I thought it was a prank, but I was afraid to say no; after all, it might be Paul Brown."

"I was also afraid to say because it might be George Preston Marshall (Redskins owner) checking up on me. He finally convinced me and I said yes."

Baker contrasted the losing tradition at Washington and the winning spirit at Cleveland.

"The other day we won our second straight and I was ready to cheer in the dressing room. The other guys, I noticed, came in, dressed and left without fanfare. They never had an idea they would lose. A two-game winning streak at Washington would have called for a celebration."

Baker took a dig at Marshall.

"Last year we had won a few games and we felt good about the upcoming game with Pittsburgh. Marshall, who owns, manages and tries to coach the Redskins, came out to practice field in his limousine and told us we'd have to start tackling and blocking, with emphasis on the 'we.' Morale of the team dipped right there and we lost by a big score."

Describing his new boss, Brown, Baker said, "He is dedicated—dedicated to winning. He sincerely believes he has to win. He had one losing season and they say he wouldn't have survived another. Brown has no use for smokers, drinkers and chasers—he calls them dogs and he says you lose one game for each dog on the team."

Baker has a high opinion of linebacker Dave Lloyd (ex-Georgia) and end Fred Murphy (ex-Tech).

On Lloyd: "He's hard-nosed."

I've heard down here that he didn't keep training too well, but Brown must have changed him. He's my roommate and a fine fellow. I'm glad he's on our team."

On Murphy: "He wasn't in the planning at all, but he made the team on desire to play. He's a fine end."

A pro team, said Baker, is like a small city.

"We have doctors, lawyers, insurance salesmen and other professional men—and also bums and tramps, just as any small city would have. A guy plays pro ball because he loves it, and he's sacrificing a business career to do it. Who'll hire you for half the year?"

Other Bakerisms:

—Ex-Georgia end John Carson was let go at Washington, not because he had slowed down but because he criticized Marshall in a newspaper column he was writing.

—The center and the holder are "75 per cent" of a successful placement.

—The AFL has affected the NFL in that player distribution has thinned out and salaries improved. He forecast that several AFL cities will be absorbed into the NFL in five-six years, making 16-18-team league.

—Paul Brown calls every Cleveland play because he has observers stationed throughout stadium and he knows the right one, "and you can't argue with success."

—Every NFL player is warned to stay away from all gamblers and officials say "there will never be a Black Sox scandal in pro football."

—Detroit Lions had a lot of trouble because businessmen were trying to coach the team, according to what Baker heard.

HENDLEY WINS TITLE FOR COLONELS, 5-1

ronto on six hits Monday night and Louisville smashed out a 5-1 victory that clinched the Little World Series.

Hendley, a Macon, Ga., native and two other former Atlanta Crackers had heavy hands in the clinching victory over the International League pennant winners.

Frank Torre lashed a sixth inning home run with John DeMerit, who had singled, on base for the big blow. That sock pinned the defeat on starter Steve Ridzik.

Hendley, 20-10 for the year, allowed the Maple Leafs two hits in the ninth, and a crowd of 4,643 cheered Bill Adair, the Colonels' pilot, when he decided to let the lefty stay in the game. He bore down and fanned the last man.

Only run that Mel McGaha's Leafs scored came in the fifth when ex-Cracker Earl Hersh singled and came home on Herb Plews' triple.

Back in the dressing room, where champagne flowed like tap water, Adair said Hendley pitched one of his finest games of the season.

"What else can you say about him and a team that wins all the big ones?"

He was asked if Hendley, who appears to be a big league prospect, would be back with the Colonels next season in spring training.

"Yes, in spring training."

De Vincenzo Rally Deadlocks Collins in TV Battle Here

Both Fire 68s; Rematch Today

Roberto de Vincenzo roared from behind with 35-foot putts on the last two holes Monday to tie Bill Collins in a spectacular All-Star Television golf match filmed at Peachtree Club.

The thrilling windup left both golfers with 18-hole scores of 68, a competitive course record on the rolling layout often called the toughest in Atlanta.

The deadlock means that De Vincenzo of Mexico City and Collins of Baltimore, Md., will clash again Tuesday in another 18-hole match with double prize money at stake.

The winner will receive $4,000, the loser $2,000.

A large gallery turned out to watch the first in a series of matches to be filmed here this week. And the fans went home buzzing after Roberto's dramatic comeback.

Two down with two holes to play, the international favorite flew the green with a 2-iron shot on 17 and appeared to be hopelessly out of it.

He chipped up 35 feet short, but rammed in the long putt.

Then on the 18th, both players left themselves short, De Vincenzo by 35 feet, Collins by 30. Roberto again rolled in the putt while Collins left his putt six inches short.

Highlights of the match were two great recovery shots, one by each player. Collins hit into the woods on the long 10th, but hit a perfect 4-wood to the green.

De Vincenzo made his great recovery on the 15th, driving into the woods, only to hit a 9-iron through the trees to the green.

The tie moves the entire week's schedule back one day. Al Bessink now will meet the winner of the Collins-deVincenzo match on Wednesday.

The survivor of that one meets Dick Metz on Thursday and Walter Burkemo swings into action Friday. Dick Mayer, originally scheduled to play Friday, will not appear in Atlanta because of the deadlock.

Action starts Tuesday at 9 a.m.—WILLIAMS

CONSTITUTION PREP RANKINGS

S'WEST, N'SIDE, MILTON IN 'BIG TEN'

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

While Valdosta, Waycross, Dublin, Morgan County and Dade County held fast to the top spots in The Constitution's Georgia high school football rankings over the weekend, seven new teams catapulted into the "Big Ten" in various classifications.

Atlanta Southwest and Northside, 26-0 and 17-0 winners over previously unbeaten West Fulton and tough Russell, vaulted into the eighth and ninth slots in Class AAA. Southwest never before made the rankings.

Gus Letch's Alpharetta Milton remained unconquered with a 14-0 thrashing of Forest Park and claimed the ten spot in Class AA. No Class A eleven managed to oust an already ranked team, but Washington-Wilkes, Turner County and Miller County moved into the seven, nine, ten places in B. And West Point eased into tenth spot in C.

Washington-Wilkes overturned Oglethorpe County, 47-0. Turner made its first appearance ever in The Constitution's listings after whaling rugged Terrell County, 23-0. Miller, which previously tied Turner, slipped by Pelham, 6-0. West Point mauled Mount Zion, 41-0.

Valdosta, Richmond Academy and Atlanta North Fulton clung to the first three pegs in AAA by manhandling Lanier, Groves and West Fulton, 19-7, 26-0 and 28-0.

But Avondale and Southwest

DeKalb whipped R. E. Lee and Chamblee, 13-0 and 12-0, and bypassed Savannah, which tumbled to sixth after wrestling Wayne County to a scoreless deadlock.

Benedictine, 21-0 winner over Aquinas, held onto seventh ahead of Southwest, Northside and Lanier, the latter falling from eighth to tenth.

Waycross, Bainbridge and Newnan clobbered Ware County, Berrien and College Park, 64-0, 39-0 and 20-6, and remained the "big three" in AA. Gainesville, 38-0 victor over Murray County, and Wayne County took two giant strides ahead to fourth and fifth ahead of Cairo. The Syrupmakers slipped past Thomasville Central, 8-0.

Gainesville moved up a peg to seventh with a 38-0 mauling of Hart County, and Chamblee dropped three slots to eighth. Thomasville, 25-6 conqueror of previously unbeaten Tifton, held ninth ahead of Milton.

Not a change took place in the first six places in Class A as Dublin, Cartersville, Carrollton, Americus and Stephens County dumped Statesboro, 7-6; Gilmer, 27-0; Bremen, 27-7; Cook, 20-6; and South Habersham, 39-0. Statesboro is No. 6.

Summersville moved upward two steps to seventh with a 32-0 shelling of Rockmart, dumping idle Irwin County and North Habersham, 14-0 victor over Toccoa, down a slot apiece. St. Pius kept the No. 10 spot with a 26-0 belting of South Hall.

Class B underwent considerable shuffling but Morgan County, Patterson and Rockdale County continued at the head of the parade after stunning Jackson, 20-0; Atkinson County, 49-13, and West Gwinnett, 13-0. Jefferson and Blakely-Union jumped up to fourth

Nation-Wide Grants Near Says NCAA

Big Ten Commissioner K. G. (Tug) Wilson said Monday that the NCAA is getting close to approving a national letter of intent setting up a uniform signing date.

"Various NCAA committees have been working on the question of a uniform signing date and are close to approving the idea," Wilson told a Chicago quarterback club. "This would mean that the signed scholarships would be respected by all conferences. It would prevent a lot of last minute hassles."

"The stumbling block has been that some other conferences recruit and sign as early as December. That is six months before they can sign in the Big Ten. Perhaps a compromise can be reached by all concerned — like making April the deadline."

Jack Daniel still guides the making of his Tennessee
sippin' whiskey

Old hands in the Hollow never forget the whiskey-making standards laid down by Mr. Jack himself. And we take care to recount them to new generations, step by step. Generally we start by telling how...

Jack Daniel found our cool limestone spring nearly a century ago and built our small distillery.

Here he cooked his neighbors' best grains in a mash, let it ferment around 90 hours, and distilled a fine sour-mash whiskey.

Then he gave it an "extra blessing" that made it different from other whiskies. He smoothed it out with Charcoal Mellowing.

That ancient Tennessee process calls for a hard maple tree from high ground. And it has to be rick-burned in the open air.

The special charcoal that results must be ground up fine and packed tightly in vats 10 feet deep. Next, the just-made whiskey is trickled in. What seeps out 10 days later is only the smooth sippin' part, ready for aging.

So you see, Mr. Jack still guides us, for we insist on making our whiskey—and Charcoal Mellowing it—just the way he always did. And after a sip of Jack Daniel's, we believe, you'll agree with our refusal to change.

A WORD TO THE WISE STAND TOGETHER IN BOAT, AND YOU'LL SINK TOGETHER

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

We received a tremendously interesting and informative booklet from the Outboard Boating Club of America. It was titled "Accidental Deaths Involving Small Boats, 1959."

Now that is not exactly what I class as entertainment reading, but the booklet does contain enlightening statistics on why some people who go out in boats don't come home in the same state of animation. We sort of figured that this study by OBC of last year's boating accidents might help pass along a few facts which could be highly important to you and me, if they were responsible for saving our lives in these autumn months.

Last year in Georgia, 25 persons died in boating accidents. Amazingly enough, 14 of those deaths occurred between September and December. Statistically, we ranked 20th in a nation which includes some low population and mighty dry states on the Western plains.

OBC learned that more than half of the boating mishaps in the nation were due to negligence—and probably more than half, since one-fourth were classified as "unknown" and some drownings included unseaworthy craft. The negligence items were listed as "standing, poor observation, unbalanced load, sudden maneuver, overload, jumped overboard, sudden starting, wake of other craft, hazardous waters, reckless operation, intoxication and miscellaneous negligence." Those should give us some idea of what and what not to do where boats are involved, if we want to bring ourselves back alive.

At the head of the list was "standing." I got my most impressive lesson in standing up in a boat many years ago when Cowboy Stephens, Shorty Davis and I were fishing the Suwanee River below Fargo. Every time I hung a plug on a limb or caught a fish, I didn't just stand up—I jumped up on the seat, an even more precarious position.

Between Steve and Shorty, they must have ordered me a hundred times to "Sit down!"—with the proper, added expletive. But I couldn't seem to remember those words longer than a couple of minutes. That is, until our bateau hit an underwater snag in the fast current and I went headfirst overboard, rod, reel and the bass I had on my line. I held onto the rod and my two partners hauled me over the gunwale, with my breathing apparatus about half full of the ink-colored Suwanee. They didn't have much trouble after that keeping me on my favorite seat.

The OBC report lists in unusual boating accidents, 12 deaths where swimmers or water skiers were hit by boats, and 2 people who were struck by lightning. A dozen boaters also lost their lives because of fire or explosion—the latter a type of accident which usually happens to in-boats when gasoline fumes collect in the hold.

In more than 67 per cent of the fatal accidents, boats with outboard motors were involved, and oddly enough the next highest percentage were rowboats powered only by paddles or oars.

All of this boils down to one simple fact—that boating, fishing, skiing and other water activities make up some of our finest outdoor recreation, and with a little caution and common sense we can enjoy them for a long, long time. Stupidity and carelessness are at least a couple of routes by which we can get our names indelibly inscribed into the statistics for almost any month of the year.

said, is not at all bad for football.

"I am still trying to get accustomed to this weather here," he said. "In California it's hot—but dry—and we don't have the humidity that Georgia has. California has more degrees, less humidity, and it's not too bad for football."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Worrell, will probably attend Friday's game, said Bill.

were 6½ to 5 favorites to take the best-of-seven-game series.

Yet this made no impression on the imperturbable Murtaugh or his young, inexperienced crew of brash Buccaneers. For the burly Murtaugh went so far as to name Bob Friend as his pitcher for Thursday's second game at Pittsburgh with left-hander Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell as his starter when the series shifts to Yankee Stadium on Saturday after a day off for travel.

"Not only that," said Murtaugh, "but it probably will be Harvey Haddix in the fourth game at Yankee Stadium on Sunday."

Refusing to play coy in the face of the famed Yankee power and fabled board of strategy, Murtaugh bluntly announced the lineup which would go against Ditmar.

Center fielder Bill Virdon will lead off followed by shortstop Dick Groat, left fielder Bob Skinner, first baseman Dick Stuart, right fielder Roberto Clemente, catcher Smokey Burgess, third baseman Don Hoak, second baseman Bill Mazeroski and Law.

Stengel, on the other hand, said he would wait until Tuesday before announcing his lineup.

will be by far the toughest we've played."

While Dodd gave his gloomy forecast, trainer Buck Andel came up with some bad news, too.

He said that second string end Jim Powell, who caught three passes in the loss to Florida, has a badly injured knee and will be lost for three or four weeks.

Only other serious injury from the Florida game was a bruised knee suffered by fullback Larry Lafkowitz. He's been called a doubtful participant in the LSU game.

All the Jackets who played against Florida got the day off Monday as the varsity reserves scrimmaged the freshmen. Many of the regulars, however, did some running on their own.

Coach Dodd has special praise for halfback Johnny Welch, quarterback Ben Ferguson and fullback Mike McNames of the varsity in the scrimmage.

Two freshmen, quarterback Johnny Sinclair and halfback Doug Cooper, were standouts. Cooper scored the freshmen's only touchdown.

MOVIES CONFIRM IT: RICE AT HIS FINEST

Special to The Constitution

AUBURN, Ala. — Game films, which never lie, proved to Auburn coaches Monday that tackle Ken Rice of Bainbridge, Ga., turned in one of his finest games against Kentucky Saturday night.

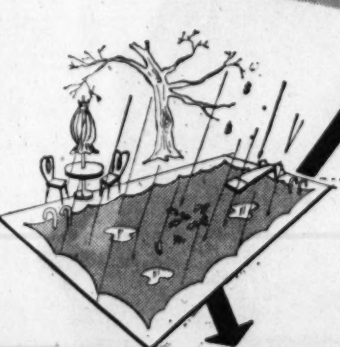

Rice, long noted as an offensive tackle, was outstanding this time for his defensive work. He made several key tackles, recovered a fumble by an Auburn back deep in Tiger territory and kept constant pressure on Wildcat passers.

Rice was part of the new Tiger four-man line which was devised to stop Kentucky's passing game.

All of the Auburn tackles drew praise for their defensive work. Others, in addition to Rice, included juniors Billy Wilson of Birmingham and Dave Woodward of Cedartown, Ga., and rising sophomore Winky Giddens of Childersburg.

Sophomore fullback Bill Burgess (Birmingham) and Ken Moore (Bessemer) each scored on short plunges for the varsity.

"Author of the book, 'How To Build A Fortune and Save On Taxes,' files petition in bankruptcy listing liabilities of over 50 thousand dollars in excess of assets."—News item.

Breathes there a man who never yearned . . . For money that he hadn't earned . . . Who did not hope to see the day . . . When he might have enough to pay . . . His past-due bills and thumb his nose . . . At all the creditors he owes . . . But that's a happening as rare . . . As snowflakes in midsummer air.

Opening lead: Q of ♥ Alec Traub, of Cape Town, South Africa, has some interesting observations on the play of today's hand, which came up at Turin, Italy, during the 1960 World Bridge Olympiad. With Charles Goren and Mrs. Helen Sobel sitting North-South against A. Aguero and R. Asriel, of Chile, the bidding reached three no-trump as shown in the box.

West opened the queen of hearts and Helen let it hold the trick. A switch to the jack of clubs would now have been a good shot for the defense, but West continued the jack of hearts and declarer took it in her hand with the king and led a small spade, winning with the king on the board. She continued a spade, losing to East's queen, and East, with no heart to return, sent back a diamond.

Declarer took the diamond in the closed hand, led a spade to knock out the ace and claimed the rest of the tricks for four-odd. She lost one heart and two spade tricks.

At the end of play it was believed that with West leading two rounds of hearts at the start, the contract could not be defeated, but Mrs. Sobel pointed out quickly that good defense could beat the contract. East, she said, should toss his queen of spades under dummy's king, thus providing West with two entries in that suit. West could then get in with one spade, knock out the heart ace and get back in with another spade to run the hearts.

"At double dummy," writes Mr. Traub, "this is an obvious defense and is a possibility in actual play, more particularly as it caters for the cases where South holds ace-ten of spades and West jack and two spades, plus a quick entry.

"However, since we're playing double dummy, 10 tricks are still there for declarer."

Mr. Traub's play is for declarer to take the second heart with the king and lead the nine of spades, letting it run unless West covers East takes the queen and switches to a diamond and declarer wins with the ace and leads another spade. West ducking and dummy's king winning.

Now declarer can return to hand with the queen of diamonds to knock out the ace of spades and get back again with the ace of clubs to run the long spades.

Cab Driver Here Radios He's Checking Out; Found Shot

A taxicab driver who had radioed his headquarters, "I'm checking out permanently," Monday shot himself as four employees of the company reached the scene, police said.

Jesse Frank Bomar, 38, of 1104 Gordon St., SW, was admitted to Crawford W. Long Hospital with a bullet wound in the head, detectives Harry McCollister and E. F. McKillop said. His condition was described as critical.

Detectives said they were told Bomar radioed his dispatcher, J. R. Mathis, at Capitol Cab Co., gave his location as Peachtree Street and Linden Avenue, and said: "I'm checking out permanently."

Mathis and four other cab company officials rushed to the scene in time to see Bomar raise a small-bore pistol and shoot himself, detectives said they were told. They said they found pictures of Bomar's two children on the cab seat.
